STORROW REPLIES TO FITZGERALD

NEW WITNESS IN GLOVER KILLING

SAW A BUGGY IN ALLEY ON NIGHT OF THE SHOOTING

Heard Girl's Outcry About Time Glover Was Fatally Shot in Laundry—New Clew Brings Another Suspect Into Case.

A new and startling development in the murder of Clarence F. Glover at his laundry in Waltham on Saturday night, for which Hattie Le Blanc was arrested, was the discovery that a girl was heard crying out in the alley that leads to the laundry about the time of the tragedy and that a covered wagon, believed to have been a buggy, was seen in the alley near the laundry.

This strengthens the belief that a third person was connected with the tragedy, that this third person reached the laundry where Glover and the girl were by means of a stairway running from the alley, and that the third person escaped in the buggy.

Heard Girl's Screams.

The man who gave this information to the AMERICAN is of high business standing. He heard the cry of the girl. At least three others heard it. One of the men went out to investigate, and, although he did not find the girl, he saw the buggy.

Janes's stable is near the laundry. Andrew Anderson of No. 88 Alder street, who was in charge of the stable on Saturday evening, said to-day that no buggy left or entered the stable on Saturday evening.

"If there was one there," declared Anderson, "it was a strange buggy."

The man who gave the information to the AMERICAN said:

"I am surprised that the police have not been to see me. I have expected them. I am ready to give them this information. I am near the scene of the crime. I was in my place of business. It was about 9 o'clock. There were seven others in the place, one a woman.

Tried to Find Girl in Dark.

"I heard a noise that came from the darkness in the direction of the alley that sounded like the cry of a frightened child, not a baby, but a child of thirteen or fourteen. I said to one of the men:

"'Open that door and see whose child that is. Bring it in. What the deuce is a child doing out there at this time of the night in the darkness?'

"The man went out. He remained a while and came back. He had not seen and child. But he did see a vehicle. He said to me: 'There is nothing but a buggy backing down toward the barn.'

"Then he explained that the buggy had been going up what is known as Higgins's alley and had got as far as Moody street and found the 'ley closed there. Then the buggy had to back down. This would not have been done had the driver been familiar with the fact that the alley had an obstruction at Moody street."

"Tremuluous, Frightened Cry."

The man was requested to tell more about the cry that was heard in the night.

"It was a tremulous, frightened cry," he said. "It was repeated three or four times and sounded as though it were made by some one who was hurrying a little girl along who was scared."

The man had not told the police these facts when he related them to the reporter who found him working on the mystery. He said there was no doubt at all about the facts and the time they happened.

It would be perfectly feasible for a person to reach the laundry in a buggy through this alley, ascend to the collar room by way of the outside stairway, where the shooting took place, and get away in a buggy.

Who Was in the Buggy.

Now, the question is, who was in that

POLICEMEN FIND WOMAN'S BODY IN PUBLIC GARDEN POND

VOL. 6—No. 248. PRICE ONE CENT

WOMAN A SUICIDE IN PUBLIC GARDEN POND

The body of Annie B. Holden, who disappeared from the United States Hotel Wednesday night, was found to-day in the pond in the Public Gardens. The woman had left a suicidal note in her hotel room and had carried out her threat by wading out into the middle of the pond and drowning herself in its three feet of water.

Temporarary mental derangement, springing rfom a highly nervous temperament, probably caused the suicide. The woman was fort-four years old.

Her suicide note was addressed to her brother, Frank S. Holden of No. 153 Central street, Somerville, who is employed as an interior decorator on Hamilton place. In this note the woman wrote that she had no money and was tired of life. Her sister-in-law, Mrs Frank S. Holden, says that she had money in the bank.

Miss Holden was a native of Westminister and of good family. She worked at a York Beach hotel last Summer. In the Fall she came to the Hotel Canterbury in the Boston Back Bay as housekeeper. Three days ago she secured a place as head of the linen room in the United States Hotel.

Find Clothing on Shore.

Wednesday afternoon she saw her brother at his place of work and accepted invitation to eat Thanksgiving dinner at his home in Somerville. When she did not appear [illegible] 2 o'clock Thanksgiving afternoon [illegible] telephoned the hotel and was told [illegible] call there as something was wrong. Then he learned about his sister's departure, leaving the suicide note. She had left the hotel Wednesday night. In her note she had also said she intended to jump into the Charles River. The police had started to search along the river.

But to-day three boys notified the police of Back Bay station that they had found a pile of woman's clothing on the shore of the Public Gardens pond while they were taking a walk yesterday. They had delayed till to-day in telling about it. The clothing included a woman's hat, coat, rubbers, gloves, two hat pins and a parasol with the monogram: "A. B. H." The monogram was that of the missing woman.

Brother Identifies Body.

Sergeant Daniel F. Murphy and Patrolmen A. J. Smith and E. J. Sullivan rowed out on the pond, while the pond-keeper started to drain off the water at the same time. The pond had been lowered six inches when the oars of the police boat hit the woman's body. It was in the middle of that part of the pond which is on the Boylston-street side of the bridge.

The body was brought to shore, where Sergeant Murphy found it answered the description of the missing woman. Medical Examiner McGrath was notified and word was sent to Frank S. Holden, the brother. He came to the Public Gardens and positively identified the body, which was then sent to the North Grove Street Morgue.

The woman probably went to her death late Wednesday night. While her relatives were waiting for her to come to the Thanksgiving dinner she was dead in the pond waters.

INQUEST TO BE HELD ON 24 BABIES

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 26.—After a secret report by the Medical Examiner on the death of Inez Johnson, a nine-year-old child, Coroner Herman S. Babcock to-day determined to hold an inquest into the mysterious deaths of twenty-four children at the Myrtle Baby Home, East Providence, between June and November.

Medical Examiner George F. Allison declined to tell what his autopsy revealed. He has been at work on it since the frightful fatality of children at the Myrtle Baby Home was revealed ten days ago. In five months twenty-four out of thirty-five or forty young children had died.

Immediately upon getting the report, Coroner Babcock issued subpoenas for the inquest, which will be held at 10 o'clock Monday.

He made the subpoenas broad enough to cover all of the deaths which occurred at [illegible] baby home. This will open the entire [illegible] to rigid legal examination, at which it [illegible] be determined whether the babies' [illegible] were due to criminal carelessness, [illegible] of the officials will say what they [illegible] or what they suspect in the [illegible].

BIG BATTLE IN PROGRESS IN NICARAGUA

COLON, Nov. 26.—The downfall of President Zelaya and the surrender of the army of 3,000 men which he has kept as a personal body guard is hourly expected, according to dispatches from Bluefields.

The deciding battle between the beleaguring force of General Estrada, the provisional President, and those of Zelaya is believed to be in progress.

It is reported that at daybreak the insurgents held every point of vantage around Managua and that plans were being made for a general assault. Revolutionists here are confident that news of Zelaya's rout and his consequent flight or capture is only a matter of hours.

Fighting Is General.

Senor Salvador Castrillo, representative of Estrada's provisional government, has received news that the fighting is general. It is probable that this will prove the crisis of the revolution.

Although the progress of the rebels has been hampered by lack of ammunition, fresh supplies were sent them on the steamer Utstein. General Toledo, one of Zelaya's strongest lieutenants, is bottled up at Greytown with 1,000 government soldiers. About the port two of the three war vessels of the provisional government are on patrol and the blockade has proven effective. It is this blockade which is regarded as a strong factor in forcing recognition of Estrada.

The Estrada vessels are the Ometepe, 1,200 tons, well armed; the Pioneer and the Blanca. Greytown was shelled on Tuesday.

Recognized by England.

Zelaya has cut himself from communication with the world. The only parts of the country reached by telegraph are under the domination of Estrada. Alteration of message is ordered by Zelaya and he is surreptitiously changing dispatches sent by Americans.

The visit of Commander Thesiger of the British cruiser Scylla to Estrada is taken by State Department officials as an indication of England's attitude.

The Prairie, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, is ready to sail for Nicaragua with 500 marines.

STORROW'S ANSWER TO FITZGERALD OUT

James J. Storrow, replying this afternoon to former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald's second letter to him, repeats that he "has no faith in a promise by Fitzgerald to limit his campaign expenses to $10,000, and reiterates his charge of "gift contracts."

Candidate Storrow and his advisers spent three hours and a half preparing the answer to the Fitzgerald letter.

Here is Mr. Storrow's statement in full:

Mr. Storrow's Reply.

"November 26, 1909.

"Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

"Dear Sir: I see no reason for continuing our correspondence, but your second letter forces me to reply to you plainly that I have absolutely no faith that if you promise to limit your campaign expenses to $10,000 you will keep your promise any beter than the 'solemn' and 'sacred' resolutions of your inaugural address. Besides, your past record in the office of Mayor gives some basis, to say the least, for the opinion that you will utilize as further campaign resources city assets and important administrative city positions.

"I do not think you are responsible for the maladministration by any of your predecessors in the office of Mayor, but only for what you have done yourself while Mayor, permitted or caused to be done by your general demoralization of the city departments under your own administration. If any other man were running against me as a candidate with a record open to criticism I should not hesitate to criticise him, but I object to your effort to try to make some other persons the issue rather than the actual candidates for Mayor.

"The salient fact in my letter was the statement that while you were Mayor you gave out or permitted to be given out hundreds of gift contracts to reward your political henchmen. I understand your letter to admit this, so over this point there can be no dispute during the campaign.

"Place Blame on Others."

"Besides trying to make the issue of this campaign the record of other mayors than yourself, you also seek in your letter to put the blame for gift contracts upon Mr. Jackson, city engineer; Mr. Dorr, engineer in the street department, and Mr. Sullivan, engineer in the paving division of the street department. You were responsible as Mayor for what your subordinate officials did. If it is your idea that in the future, if elected Mayor, you can disclaim responsibility for the important acts of your subordinates, certainly there may be some question whether the citizens of Boston can afford to elect you Mayor. In this connection I call your attention to the report of the Finance Commission made November 14, 1908, to be found in the first volume of the Published Reports, where on Page 103 the following is stated:

> Early in 1906 the Mayor was advised by the engineer of the Street Department to discontinue the city crushing plants, and the loss to the city from this cause in that year and 1907, estimated by the commission at $179,000 (p. 217), could have been avoided if the Mayor had taken this advice. Some of the

JOHNSON READY TO MEET LANGFORD IN 30 DAYS FOR $10,000 SIDE BET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Jack Johnson is ready to fight Sam Langford and will sign articles at once for the battle to take place within thirty days. The only condition the champion makes is that Langford make a side bet of $10,000.

This announcement was made to-day by George Little, manager of Johnson. Here is what Little had to say:

"While in Pittsburg last week Joe Woodman, Langford's manager, announced that he had posted a side bet of $10,000 with a New York newspaper. I came her to-day to cover this money and am told that Langford's cash is up in Pittsburg. I know it is not up there, for I was ther all last week. I have $10,000 posted with a newspaper in Pittsburg, which is to cover Langford's money, but I cannot find the coin anywhere.

To Fight Within 30 Days.

"Plainly the Langford people are misrepresenting things. However, that doesn't matter a bit. If they are sincere in wanting the match they can put up their money now and the fight will be on. It can take place within thirty days. That should be agreeable to Langford, for he is in great shape now.

"I will insist on the $10,000 side bet going, though. It will cost us about that much in cancelled theatrical engagements to take on the fight.

"Now, it is surely up to Manager Woodman and Sam Langford. They will either have to come through or stop their foolish holler that Johnson fears the Boston colored man."

Langford's Money Up To-morrow.

"I Little is looking for that $10,000 side bet he won't have far to look," declared Joe Woodman as soon as he read the above dispatch. "The money will be posted with the sporting editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. It will go as a side bet, not at even money, but at prevailing odds. Johnson may be a 2 to 1 favorite.

"This idea of prevailing odds is exactly in line with what Little did in the match between Jeffries and Johnson. It will be recalled that Jeffries was ready to put up $25,000 as a side bet for Johnson to cover, but Little said $10,000 was enough and this amount was not to go unless he got prevailing odds for it.

"Now, Langford will fight Johnson any time within thirty or sixty days. New Year's Day would suit us perfectly. The $10,00 will go up to-morrow morning and it can remain here or be transferred to the New York Evening Journal any time that suits Little.

The inventory of the estate of the late Louis P. Hollander, filed to-day, shows that his estate amounted to $417,404.

The personal property amounts to $401,304, the bulk of which consists of his interest in L. P. Hollander & Co. of Boston and New York. He had a five-fourteenths interest in each store, the two holdings combining a valuation of $390,800. He also had a third interest in the lease of the land and buildings of the New York store at No. 550-552 Fifth avenue, whose value is undetermined.

One of the principal items in the real property is the Summer place at Marblehead Neck, valued at $13,300. The total real property is $16,100.

MADE MANIAC BY FATAL RIDE

HOLYOKE, Nov. 26.—The terrible results which flowed from the "joy ride" in which an automobile crashed into a tree at West Springfield a week ago have made a madman of J. Lewis Perkins, who was driving the machine at the time of the crash. His mind has gone to pieces under the strain. He became insane when he heard of the third death from the accident that of John Chadwick. The other two to lose their lives were J. Otto Dreikon and Joseph La Liberte.

W. B. Reid, whose skull was fractured, has been brought home to Holyoke from the Springfield Hospital. The doctors say he has a slight chance of recovery.

As soon as Perkins's insanity was discovered he was removed to a sanitarium.

GAS FATAL TO AGED MAN AND HOUSEKEEPER

Charles C. Herrick and his housekeeper, Miss Ida Lydston, were found dead in the Herrick home, No. 19 Fayette street, Lynn, to-day. The lower part of the house was filled with coal gas. Herrick was seventy-nine years old and the housekeeper was forty-four. He was a brother of George W. Herrick, the millionaire shoe manufacturer.

The bodies were found by Walter Herrick, a nephew of the dead man, who lived with his uncle. He said that the fire in the coal range had been built yesterday for the first time. According to the story he told the police, he came home late Wednesday night and did not get up until late Thursday afternoon. When he came down stairs he smelled gas, and looking about the rooms found the two bodies. Medical Examiner Pinkham reported to the police that death was due to accidental asphyxiation.

Charles C. Herrick was associated with his brother at the Herrick shoe factory. He was unmarried and lived with his nephew and the housekeeper in the cottage home on Fayette street.

There will be a double funeral Sunday.

2 AERONAUTS KILLED IN 500 MILE FLIGHT

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—The bodies of Dr. Brenckmann and Hugo Francke, members of the Aero Club of Berlin, were found to-day near Fiume, Austria. They had been killed by the collapse of their balloon, "Kolmar." Their bodies were badly mangled. Nearby was the wrecked balloon with a huge rent in the silk gas bag that told the tale of the disaster.

No word had been heard of them since they left Berlin on their flight, and no particular anxiety had been felt, as they were two of the most daring and skilled balloonists in Germany and had frequently made long trips. The spot where their bodies were found is about 500 miles from Berlin.

Brenckmann had recently insured his life with a newly formed aerial insurance company, and was the third man who had been accepted as a risk. Dr. Brenckmann was connected with the Charity Hospital here, while Herr Francke was a widely known architect. The flight that ended in their death began on Monday from Schmargendorf, a suburb of Berlin.

JAMES COLEMAN WOULD ENJOIN SON

James Coleman, a contracting teamster, was granted a preliminary injunction by Judge Richardson in the Superior Court to-day restraining his son, Frederick J. Coleman, from mortgaging or disposing in any way of the petitioner's $9,000 homestead property on Torrey street, Dorchester. In his bill Coleman claims that, while he was under the influence of liquor he conveyed this homestead property to his wife and his teaming business to his son, with the understanding that they were to pay some small bills of his and re-convey the properties to him. He got his teaming business back, but says that his wife has recently transferred the title of the homestead to his son, also that his wife paid none of his debts. The wife and son are named as defendants.

TRAGEDY IN LIBRARY.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 26.—William F. Strohl, forty-five years old, of No. 153 Genesee street, shot and instantly killed Frank Stens in the Public Library at noon to-day. Strohl was captured after shooting Petrolman Hannen through the wrist.

THANKSGIVING SPIRIT BRINGS ONE DAY'S JOY TO THOUSANDS OF POOR

New England's 1909 Thanksgiving Day was a meteorological freak, as the tens of thousands of city dwellers who journeyed to "the old home" will long remember.

The biggest public affair in Boston was the Salvation Army free dinner to the poor. The unfortunates were fed at the People's Palace, at East Brookline and Washington streets, numbered 2,300. Baskets and bags of food sufficient to feed 3,400 others were distributed at the Palace early in the day, and Colonel Gifford, the commander of the Army contingent, estimated that at least 5,700 persons had been given a good dinner each.

To prepare these dinners the following quantities of food were used: 3,000 pounds of fowls, 1,000 pounds of other meats, 500 pounds of kosher meat, 40 hams, 3,000 loaves of bread, 60 bushels of potatoes, 40 bushels of turnips, 500 pounds of squash, 20 bushels of beets, 20 bushels of onions, 800 pounds of grapes, 60 dozen cans of tomatoes, 50 dozen cans of condensed milk, 7,000 bananas, 2,000 bunches of celery, 500 quarts of cranberries, 50 bushels of apples, 2,500 mince pies, 3,000 pounds of candy, 1,500 pounds mixed nuts, 2,000 pounds of sugar, 600 pounds of coffee, 50 gallons of cocoa, 300 pounds of butter.

At the almshouse, the house of correction, the school for boys, the county jail and other public institutions the inmates were given the usual Thanksgiving fare. At the county jail roast sparerib was the chief solid food, while turkey was the centre of the dinner at each of the other institutions. At each the usual discipline was relaxed, and after the dinner there was music and entertainment for the inmates.

At the Little Wanderer's Home, the Helping Hand Home for Destitute Jewish Children, the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea, the Sailors' Haven, the Young Women's Christian Association homes and the Navy Yard the Thanksgiving spirit was predominant for the day, and at each there was a big dinner.

There were masses and Thanksgiving dinners of turkey and other delectables at all of the Catholic charitable institutions, including the Home for the Aged on Dudley street, St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, the Home for Destitute Children on Harrison avenue, the Daly Industrial School, the House of the Angel Guardian, the Home for Working Boys at Newton, the House of the Good Shepherd at Brookline, and St. Joseph's Home on East Brookline street. The material for many of these dinners was sent in, as usual, by Catholic people interested in the institutions or their inmates.

President Taft began the day by attending, with members of his family, a Pan-American Thanksgiving mass at Washington. The mass was attended by the representatives of the other American republics, and was celebrated by the Papal delegate, Mgr. Falconio.

The entire Taft family was present at the Thanksgiving dinner, the younger members having gone to Washington from their schools. The big Rhode Island turkey sent by Horace Vose was there, but the seven-foot mince pie which the striking pie bakers of New York had shipped a few days before had not been delivered in time. After dinner the President expressed himself as happy with a dinner without any speechmaking attached to it. Then he telephoned Atorney General Wickersham, and with Captain Butt, his military aide, put that gentleman through the courses of a brisk two-hour walk along the Potomac.

The style of dinner at the St. Louis almshouse was put to a vote of the inmates, and, by a vote of three to one they declared in favor of frankfurter sausages and sauerkraut, in preference to turkey. They were given their wish, each receiving two of the sausages with a big plate of kraut.

ARCHBISHOP URGES WAR ON MORAL EVILS

Prominent State and city officials, officers of high rank from numerous military organizations, and upward of 3,000 other invited guests, crowded the Cathedral at the annual memorial military service of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M.

A solemn high mass of thanksgiving was celebrated and Archbishop O'Connell delivered the sermon, in which he spoke of the meaning of a national day of thanksgiving, declared that true patriotism must spring from religious principles, gave high praise to the past and present members of "the fighting Ninth," and exhorted them to fight with the spirit of the past against the great moral evils that, he declared, as truly as armed rebellion, now threaten the national life.

Governor Draper, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham and members of the Governor's staff, Mayor Hibbard, ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, James J. Storrow and Alderman J. J. Attridge were at the service.

The soldiers of the Ninth, under command of Colonel John J. Sullivan, occupied the front seats on either side of the middle aisle. Besides the regular Ninth regiment were detachments from the Ninth Regiment Veterans' Association, the Spanish War Veterans, and a little group, remnants of the once brilliant regiment that started 1,600 strong, in June, 1861, on its way to earn the name of "the fighting Ninth."

Archbishop O'Connell, attended by Mgr. Splaine and the Rev. Thomas R. McCoy, occupied the episcopal throne. The mass was celebrated by Vicar-General Patterson, with the Rev. James Lee of Revere as deacon and the Rev. P. B. Murphy of South Boston as sub-deacon. The Rev. Dr. Charles J. Sullivan, assistant chancellor, was master of ceremonies.

POPE ORDERS NEW CANON LAW ISSUED

ROME, Nov. 26.—Pope Pius X. to-day ordered that a new canon law be published before Easter. Although the terms are still kept secret, it is believed on good authority that the edict contains important modifications of the modernization regulations affecting marriage.

The issuance of the present law more than a year ago attracted much attention, as it marked another step in the fight of the Vatican against "modernist" tendencies. The law affects the union of Catholics and non-Catholics, making unrecognized any such marriage not performed by a priest.

IT'S MILITARY DAY AT THE 1915 SHOW

There is only one more day in which to see the "1915" Boston exposition, and as the time approaches for closing this unique show, which has occupied the old Art Museum for the past three weeks, the crowds in attendance increase. In spite of the downpour and of the holiday, thousands flocked to Copley square yesterday. To-day is Military, Providence and Brockton day.

The special feature of the Military Day program was an address at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Captain Frank Scott Long, U. S. A., commanding Fort Revere, Hull. Invitations were sent to the members of all the military organizations in Boston and hereabouts to attend in full dress.

MAINE MAN SHOOTS DEER FROM COACH

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 26.—Robert T. Clark, local manager for a meat company, has returned after the most unusual huting trip of the season.

He attended a wedding in Lakeview and on the way from the station in Milo he spied a deerspied a deer. Clark had brought a rifle and at the first shot the deer was wounded.

The deer proved to be an exceptionally fine four-year-old buck of the "hog deer" variety, one one of the best to be shot in all that region this fall.

WOMAN BURIED BY FALLING CHIMNEY

A tall chimney on the roof of the lodging house at No. 75 Beach street, in the South End, toppled over falling upon Mrs. Jessie Tilton as she was hanging out some clothing from a window. She was taken to the City Hospital.

LOEB 'FIRES' 10 WEIGHERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Ten more assistant United States weighers, connected with the custom house were dismissed to-day in the official "house cleaning" inaugurated by Collector Loeb following the revelations that the Sugar Trust scandal has defrauded the government out of customs duty. This brings the total of the weighers and assistants dismissed by Collector Loeb up to eighty-three. After the dismissal of the ten men, the names of whom were withheld, the collector announced that the official "house cleaning" had been brought to an end.

"With the exception of a few individual cases all the evil has been rooted out of the customs house in this city," said the collector.

"HATTIE LE BLANC UNABLE TO FIRE REVOLVER"

RELATIVES SAY DEATH SUSPECT NEVER USED A FIREARM AND COULDN'T KILL GLOVER.

buggy? Did the person in the buggy do the shooting, and did Glover think it was Hattie Le Blanc? Was Hattie Le Blanc carried away in that buggy?

The police talked to Andrew Anderson, who has charge of Janes's stable, this afternoon, but as he did not know anything at the time about the buggy they got nothing of value from him.

SISTERS DEFEND HATTIE LE BLANC

Miss Irene Le Blanc, a sister of Hattie Le Blanc, in some new and remarkable revelations made to-day at the home of relatives in Gloucester in connection with Saturday night, declared that she and her other sister, Lillian, knew facts which they would relate at the trial of Hattie which would free her from the charge of murder.

District Attorney John J. Higgins began to dig into the case to-day. From the information that has come to him so far he summed up the matter in these significant words:

"It is a queer case and there are suspicious features."

Could Not Use Pistol.

Hattie Le Blanc, the youngest girl ever charged with murder in New England, old lawyers say, is a miserable little prisoner in the East Cambridge jail. Unable to talk much English she is unable to take opportunity of the little chance she has for companionship. But she has two staunch defenders in her sisters Irene and Lillian. Here are the new phases in the mystery which the two sisters have brought to the front in the interest of the girl-prisoner:

That the sisters have facts that will free Hattie, which will come out at her trial.

That Hattie could not use a revolver, probably never having touched one in her life.

That Mrs. Lillian Marie Glover, the widow, called in the sisters on Monday, and SENT THEM ALL THROUGH THE HOUSE.

That the sisters believe Hattie was there then and that they were expected to find her.

That Glover and his wife had frequent clashes, said to have been over her brother Antonio.

That Antonio was fond of Hattie and wanted to pay her attention.

That most of Glover's real estate is in the name of Antonio.

THAT ANTONIO CAN'T BE FOUND AND MRS. GLOVER HAS NOT TOLD WHERE HE IS.

That Antonio, or "Toby," cannot be in California, for he was seen in Waltham not long ago.

Irene and Lillian Le Blanc, who were formerly employed in Waltham, but who were taken in charge by relatives earlier in the week, were found to-day at No. 106 Pleasant street, Gloucester. They do not believe for an instant, and never have, that Hattie shot Glover, in spite of his dying statement that she did.

IRENE LE BLANC

Sister of Hattie Le Blanc, who declares her innocent.

Declare Girl Is Innocent.

Mrs. Thomas Davie, who is one of the relatives, had this to say of Hattie:

"The girl is innocent—we feel sure of that."

Then Irene Le Blanc, who is eighteen years of age, acting as spokesman for the two sisters, said:

"Hattie knew nothing of revolvers nor of firearms of any kind. She couldn't fire a revolver. We never had any firearms at home. A gun or a revolver would have frightened her.

"When the case comes to trial I shall go on the stand and tell some things, as will my sister. I cannot tell you what they are. It will not take long to tell what we know. But it will free Hattie. We feel absolutely convinced of that. When the full facts come out Hattie will not be blamed at all.

Girl Complained of Her Life.

"Hattie was much dissatisfied with her home with the Glovers. She told us about that last week. It was more than the mere homesickness of a girl of sixteen. But she wanted to go back home, in spite of the fact that she was treated in many ways as a member of the family. But I do not want to go into that—not now.

"Hattie told us last week one thing that may have had something to do with her dissatisfaction—that may have had something to do with the dreadful tragedy that has shocked us so. She said that he told her he liked her very much. We understood her to say his name was 'Tony.'

"We thought that very strange. But Hattie is a pretty, winsome girl who might attract the attention and win the love and respect of any one. Then we read in the newspapers that this brother could not be found—that he is away in California.

"We recalled what had been said about him and felt sure that there was a mistake about this brother being in California. We don't believe it. If he is in California he must have gone very lately. We feel sure that we saw him at the house not very long ago.

"My sister and I were passing along the street on Monday afternoon. We were across the street from the Glover house. A man came across the street and told us that Mrs. Glover would like to have us call. Mrs. Glover was very sociable. She did not show any feeling against us as sisters of the girl charged with the murder of her husband.

"Mrs. Glover asked us if we were not lonesome. She said she wanted to cheer us up. We did not think at the time that Hattie was in the house—that is, it had never occurred to us then that she might have been.

"We were told by Mrs. Glover that she thought that Hattie was all right. I do not recall her exact words. But the idea I have now is that she said she felt sure that Hattie was all right, or that she hoped she was all right.

Led Girls Through House.

"Now comes the queer thing—we have just appreciated the fact. During the time we were there Mrs. Glover sent us all over the house. She sent us into all of the rooms. She made all sorts of excuses for these errands. She asked us to hunt for a handkerchief. She told us to look out of windows and tell her what we saw.

"I do not want to say anything against Mrs. Glover. All I am telling you is simply the truth, and it looks queer to-day, although at the time we never thought of it. It has come over us after thinking carefully of what took place that perhaps Hattie was right there then, and perhaps that Mrs. Glover knew it and she might have wanted us to find her.

"If we had found Hattie, I do not know what we would have done—how can one tell what they would do under such trying circumstances? Mrs. Glover has said that she did not know that Hattie was there. Why did she send us through the house? Why did she call us over?

Not Related to Mrs. Glover.

"This will all come out later I believe. Now the matter must be simply conjecture. Mrs. Glover paid the fares of all three sisters to the United States. We were to repay her at our convenience. We have not paid her anything. She never seemed to mind it—in fact, said not to worry about it, but to pay her whenever we got the chance. She is not a relation. We thought she was, but find that she is not. That makes the matter a little more difficult to understand. We simply came from the same town and had the same last names.

"We know that there was trouble in the house between Mrs. Glover and her husband. Hattie told us that. Hattie knows a great deal more than she ever told us, because she hinted that she did, but of course we never thought it wise to go into that.

"Many things took place which at the time were not considered as amounting to anything—just like Mrs. Glover sending us through the house—to which we paid no particular attention at the time. Now these things become significant.

Will Send Hattie Home.

"Hattie is sixteen years of age, going on seventeen, and my sister Lillian is fifteen. Hattie and I were paid by the week, receiving $2, while Lillian got only $1.50. We went to see Mrs. Glover frequently. Hattie has been here about thirteen months.

"We are going to fight for Hattie with all our might. We will have a good lawyer. We want the facts known. Hattie will come out of this all right. We have faith in that. We are going to stay here with our relatives. They are very kind to us. It is like home.

"When Hattie is freed she shall go back home to Cape Breton. They know her there and all of our people."

CHIEF M'KENNA EXPLAINS WHY HE ADMITTED ELMORE

Chief of Police McKenna of Waltham, who has been criticised because of the way he has conducted the case in some particulars, explained to-day just why Lawyer Samuel D. Elmore was admitted when Hattie Le Blanc was examined and how State Detective Byrnes came into the mystery. He declared emphatically that there was no politics in the case, as had been asserted in some quarters.

"I talked over the telephone on Tuesday morning with District Attorney Higgins," said Chief McKenna. "He asked me how the case stood and I told him. I said that there were some mysterious things connected with the case and that there might be further developments. I said that we might be led in different directions from those already taken.

"He said that if I needed any help to let him know and he would send me some one. Well, the girl was found in the house and locked up. I called Mr. Higgins on the 'phone, but instead of getting him I happened to get Byrnes on the 'phone, and I told him to tell the district attorney that the case had reached a point where I thought he ought to be represented and to send a man. Byrnes was sent.

Why Elmore Was There.

"Now about Lawyer Elmore. He was present at the time of the examination of Hattie Le Blanc and I think I was right in having him there. He had been the counsel for Glover and had been a friend of the family for twenty years. All of the financial interests in the case, you might say, were practically in his hands, and he was greatly interested from that standpoint in the developments in the case.

"For those reasons I allowed him to be present. I do not believe I did anything wrong."

The Rev. Charles H. Stackpole, the Methodist clergyman who formerly lived in Boston, but who now lives on the ground floor of the Glover house, explained his connection with the case to-day. He said:

"Any story attributed to me that I heard the Glovers quarrelling is not true. I never said that. I heard heavy walking on the floor above, but do not know what caused it.

"I knew Hattie Le Blanc, because she lived in the same house. I looked on her as a child. We all liked her. When she was locked up, a little girl who could not speak much English and with no one to go to her, I thought it my duty as a minister of the gospel to do for her what I could.

Minister's Visit to Girl.

"I went to Chief of Police McKenna and told him these facts and asked him if he thought I could see her. He said that he did not see anything wrong in my doing so, and so I went to the girl's cell and had a talk with her.

"I tried to cheer her up in her awful position. I did not try to pry into the merits of the case. That was not the object of the visit at all. What I was trying to do was to give this little girl some comfort in her trying position.

"After I had talked with the girl I went back to the police chief and asked him if he thought there would be anything wrong in me getting the girl an attorney. He did not object. He did not suggest the name of the lawyer, as I knew and he knew that would not have been proper. I went out and secured the services of Nathaniel [illegible] Tufts. That is how this young lawyer got into the case.

"I took it for granted that as soon as the case got into court that either the friends of the girl would get her a lawyer or the court would provide one. There was no idea at all in what I did to force a lawyer on any one. I simply thought that at that stage of the tragedy there should be an attorney representing the miserable little girl who needed such help for her own protection."

Harvard and the Salvationists.

It may seem a far cry from the new theology of President Eliot to the dogmas of the Salvation Army. Yet, both representatives labor for good, as all will acknowledge. In the faculty of Harvard, as among leaders in the Salvation Army, keen, practical intelligence governs. Visitors to Boston, riding on "Seeing Boston" autos, have pointed out to them the new headquarters of the Salvation Army at Washington and Brookline streets. It is an ornament to the section as well as a continuing public benefit. It was built in 1908. But before work was started on the lot its title was examined and guaranteed by the Massachusetts Title Insurance Co., 70 State street. So when Harvard professors have bought homes in Cambridge, they have also wisely relied on the same security. What are you doing?

189 BODIES IN SEALED MINE

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 26.—The closing chapter in the St. Paul mine horror was written to-day when the last of the State troops and the army of mine officials and experts departed, leaving the widows and orphans of Cherry to mourn for their 310 dead and the 189 bodies abandoned to the flames in the sealed mine.

With the departure of Company C to Kewanee, twelve deputy sheriffs, acting under orders from Sheriff Skoglund, took up the work of guarding the upper parts of the mine, which some of the miners in their anger at the abandonment of rescue efforts had threatened to destroy with dynamite.

The mine inspectors in a body, headed by Richard Newsam, chief mine inspector of the State, left for Chicago to lay before Governor Deneen their findings.

HUNGER LED HIM TO JAIL

"Your Honor, I was tired and cold and hungry and wet through from the rain. I told the policeman to lock me up so that I could get a warm place to sleep and a Thanksgiving dinner," said John J. Denning, when arraigned before Judge Bosson in the Chelsea Police Court to-day. Patrolman Harry Parsons testified that as he was walking along his beat in the height of Wednesday night's storm the wet, dripping, shivering figure of a man came up to him and said:

"Please lock me up. I am cold and hungry. I have been tramping the streets all day looking for work. If I stay on the street much longer I'll starve to death."

The man was Denning. The policeman took him to the police station, where he was given dry clothing and a hot meal. He had a Thanksgiving dinner of turkey in the jail yesterday. Judge Bosson sent him to the State Farm to-day for an indefinite term on a vagrancy charge.

Dramatic Star Who Finds Home Life the Sweetest

Two photos of stage favorite, showing her as she is off the stage; how she spends her time, sewing and writing.

"I see, Watson," said Sherlock Holmes, glancing around the room, "that this is the abode of a detective. Note the handcuffs on the bureau and that dark lantern under the bed."

"Wrong again," sneered Watson, "this is the lodgings of a dealer in junk."

The great Holmes was undisturbed.

"And by my infallible system of observation, subtraction and deduction, the young lady we saw through the open door on our way here is a person of domestic tastes—for you may have noticed she was sewing."

"A fresh noodle for you, Holmes. You're running out of the dope. The domestic young woman is no other than the famous 'Detective Sparkes,' and Sherlock Holmes subsided—not knowing that for once he had been right.

All of which is prefatory to the statement that the great thief-catcher of Michael Morton's stirring comedy-drama who comes to the Hollis Street Theatre is in real life quite the opposite of what one would suppose a sleuth—for that matter, a popular star—to be. Hattie Williams, who is one of the most successful women on the stage, cares as little for the frivolities that are popularly supposed to be incidental to the life of the stage as she cares for the handcuffs or dark lantern.

Motors Only on Stage.

The only automobile in which she is likely to be seen during her two weeks' stay in Boston is the very real machine used in the third act of "Detective Sparks." It took two weeks of constant rehearsal under the watchful eyes of Charles Frohman before she could fire the revolver, used in the second act of her stirring play, without trembling herself into ague; late suppers know her not nor does Society's lure tempt her.

During her long engagements in New York city Miss Williams settles down to a life that is ideal for its simplicity and its solid comfort. Her apartments, situated near enough to Broadway to allow of a short but brisk walk to and from rehearsals and performances, is, unlike most apartments, a HOME—a home over which Miss Williams "presides" in the truest sense of the word, for she dominates the kitchen as well as the parlor and her artistic and vigorous personality stamps every nook and corner of the place.

"At the hour when "Stars" are popularly supposed to be languidly touching the electric button for Louise or Zaza or whatever the name of the French maid is, to bring in the morning chocolate and the latest novel, Miss Williams is returning from a long walk through the highways and byways of the great city—a walk that is not for exercise alone, for it means, that great essential to a great actress, OBSERVATION. The actress returns to her apartments vigorous in body, richer by the study of some odd incidents of street life—and with an appetite that is shockingly normal.

Golfs in Her Room.

Then does the petted actress dandle a long-haired Pomeranian in her lap while admirers sit by in humble worship as they do in the "realistic" novels of stage life? Not much! Hattie Williams plies a vigorous and skilled needle to add some last dainty touch to a gown, or plays a round of golf in her study. "Golf" is what Miss Williams calls it, but it is played with a broom and dust rug instead of a bag of clubs. "Just as healthy and more sensible," is the comment of the star. Her "golfing" completed, Miss Williams settles down for an hour or two of "bridge"—the same being rehearsal at the piano and running over the latest songs, for although Miss Williams has deserted musical comedy for straight comedy, her intense love for melody and song has not been abated one jot. After "bridge" comes the latest French novel—or to be accurate the latest manuscript that Mr. Frohman has sent to the clever woman to read and comment upon.

Is a Skilled Linguist.

The great beauty of sending a manuscript to Miss Williams is that it doesn't have to be translated, for the actress is as familiar with German and French as with the English she speaks so eloquently on the stage. Sometimes a particular passage in the manuscript will appeal to the actress, and she works it out with speech and gesture as conscientiously as though the great manager himself were present.

COOK BREAKS DOWN UNDER POLAR STRAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—As a result of the mental strain under which he has labored in preparing his records for the Danish scientists, Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discoverer of the North Pole, has suffered a nervous breakdown. He is at the home of an intimate friend in New York, but his condition is such that not even his closest personal friends are allowed to see him.

Looking haggard and ten years older than when he arrived from the Arctic regions in September, the explorer left his hotel, the Gramatan Inn, Bronxville, Wednesday afternoon, for a visit to New York. There was such a change in his condition he did not return to Bronxville last night, and Mrs Cook joined him here.

Although it was announced that Walter Lonsdale, who left New York yesterday for Copenhagen, was conveying the explorer's original data and the comprehensive analysis he had prepared in support of his assertion that he was the first to reach the North Pole, it was learned that the data and report in reality were sent to Europe several days ago on a fast steamer and were due to arrive at Copenhagen several days before Mr. Lonsdale, who is due at the Danish capital on December 7.

"Dr. Cook's records are in the safe of a transatlantic liner now in midocean," said Henry W. Wack, the explorer's counsel. "The large portfolio which Mr. Lonsdale carried aboard the United States was only a dummy to trap the conspirators who have resorted to every means to gain possession of Dr. Cook's data. I am convinced that an effort will be made to rob him of the package which he has in his possession before the United States reaches the other side.

"The man must have quiet and rest and I think he is doing the right thing in going into temporary seclusion."

The great change in Dr. Cook's physical condition has been noted and commented upon by his close friends for more than a week. The charges made by Rear Admiral Chester in a speech in New York ten days ago disturbed the explorer very much. He was anxious to issue a statement in reply to Admiral Chester and demand a public retraction, but as he was working day and night in completing his report for Copenhagen, he accepted the advice of friends and decided to ignore all attacks until after the University of Denmark has officially passed upon his data.

THAW PLAYING WALL STREET, SAYS EVELYN

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to-day came out with a broadside against her husband, Harry Thaw, whom she visited at the Matteawan asylum Thanksgiving Day and was snubbed there. She declared that she knew Thaw gambled in Wall street, that he had ample funds and that he is now trying to take away from her all of her furniture.

"I don't know what to do," she said to-day when seen in her apartment at No. 31 West Thirty-third street. "I have no money with which to retain a lawyer. Harry is trying to make it as disagreeable for me as he can and he will not permit me to sue for an annulment of our marriage.

Three weeks ago Harry wrote me a letter saying that an important matter had come up for us to discuss and asking me to visit him.

Meeting Under Guard.

"He said in the letter that our pet dog 'Toto' had died in Pittsburg. I thought a great deal of 'Toto' and it grieved me. So I went to Matteawan to see Harry. I did not go with my brother, as has been said. I went alone.

"When I arrived at Matteawan I met Dr. Baker, and he told me that Judge Morschauser, Mr. Thaw's lawyer, had told him that I was coming to visit Harry. I then saw Harry in a private room. Although he had threatened to kill me, I was willing to see him alone. Dr. Baker, however, would not consent to this and so a guard was present.

"The first thing Harry said to me was, 'I want to see you about getting my furniture.' I asked him what he meant. He replied, 'Under the civil code a husband is compelled to give his wife no more than a bed. I want the rest of your furniture. I am going to send a sheriff after it.'

"I asked him why he intended resorting to that method. He answered me as follows: 'The trustees of my estate have arranged to sell my furniture to defray my recent expenses.'

Talked Only of Furniture.

"I told him that I thought that it was hardly possible he intended taking the little I had. We talked for two hours in the asylum. During that time several patients passed us. Mr. Thaw pointed out several of them in the midst of his conversation in which he was demanding 'his furniture,' and concerning each patient said: 'Do you see that man? Well, he is just as sane as I am.' I tell this to show how irrational the conversation was.

"I finally told him that my present position was unbearable and asked him to help me in suing for an annulment of our marriage. He would not give me any definite answer concerning that and would only talk about 'my furniture,' as he called it.

"I don't know what to do. To-day I am allowed $70 a week and as soon as I try to buy anything under the name of Mrs. Thaw merchants charge me four times the ordinary price. So $70 a week to me is like $17 a week.

"Mr. Thaw has plenty of money, and he is squandering it. He is playing Wall street and the races, and I know the name of the man in New York who is acting as his agent in his gambling. Furthermore he is losing money.

"And in addition to this he donates money to churches and he denies me—his wife—what I need to live on. I feel sorry for him. I believe that he is not responsible and that he is badly advised."

DEPORTED FAMILY WILL TRY AGAIN

The Italian liner Lazio sailed from East Boston to-day for Naples and Genoa, and among its passengers were Mrs. Saoud Massad, her son, Sahed Massad, and her five little grandchildren. The aged woman and her little charges were denied entrance to the United States. They are Syrians. The woman said when she landed here from Italy on November 11 that she was taking her grandchildren out West to join their parents. She sent for her son, and he came here from Oklahoma. The order of deportation stood, however, and so the son went back to Italy to-day with his mother and the children, declaring that he will get them into the United States in a short time at some other port.

PRINCE GEORGE TO BE VICTOR'S GUEST

ROME, Nov. 26.—Prince George, whose escapades resulted in his renunciation of the succession to the Servian throne, is expected here December 10 as the guest of King Victor Emmanuel, who is his uncle. From here he will proceed by easy stages to St. Petersburg. Upon his last visit to the Russian capital it was said that he made a somewhat hurried departure upon a hint from the Czar following some reported irregular check transactions.

A NEW MASSAGE—Mme. Cavalieri will explain it in detail in the Sunday American.

SOUTHERN MOB TO LYNCH WHITE MAN

CONVENT, La., Nov. 26.—Two hundred men have been searching all day through St. James's parish—as the counties in this State are called—for Michael Haik, a white man accused of having detained a young mulatto girl for several days in a cabin, after which he murdered her. Sheriff La Bourgers and a posse came upon Haik in a canebrake near Jamestown. The fugitive opened fire on the posse. He was well barricaded and before his pursuers scattered to shelter he wounded fourteen of them. Sheriff La Bourgers is afraid the angry posse will lynch the fugitive if he is captured.

American Girl Scores Opera Triumph in Paris.

PARIS—Bessie Bowie, a member of the well-known Bowie family of San Francisco, made a triumphant debut at the Dunkerque Opera House as Santuzza in "Cavaliera Rusticana." In spite of the strong objections of her family, Miss Bowie persisted in the idea of going on the stage. But not even her most intimate friends knew that she was about to make a public appearance last evening. For some time Miss Bowie has been studying with Lussiez, the director of the Opera Dunkerque, who is a great believer in the power and beauty of American voices, and especially those of American women. In Miss Bowie he believes he has found a wonderful dramatic soprano. Her success as Santuzza warrants his predictions of a brilliant future for the young singer.

Tree Produces "Beethoven."

LONDON—Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree produced at His Majesty's Theatre Parker's free adaptation of "Beethoven," Rene Fauchois's play. It was not a great success in France and does not seem to promise more here. It is a series of scenes from Beethoven's life rather than a play, and although the cast is a long one nobody except Sir Herbert, in the name part, has a chance of scoring. The most striking feature of the production to many was Sir Herbert's makeup, by which he seemed to have reduced his height by several inches. The audience was very friendly, but the critics found the piece slow, tame and uninspiring.

Hungary Honors Kossuth.

BUDAPEST—The remains of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, have been transferred from their temporary resting place to a specially built mausoleum. Members of the Cabinet and of the Chamber of Deputies, officials and patriots and the two sons of Kossuth were present at the ceremony. The Premier, Dr. Weckerle, laid a wreath on the casket on behalf of the Hungarian government.

Czar Ferdinand at Belgrade.

BELGRADE—Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria has arrived here. King Peter, Crown Prince Alexander and Foreign Minister Milovanovitch met him at the railway station and gave him a hearty welcome. The Czar and King drove from the station to the palace. The people along the route greeted them cordially.

Wellington Sells for $10,000.

LONDON—Lawrence's famous portrait of the Duke of Wellington was sold at auction for $10,000. The Agnews have bought in St. Petersburg Rembrandt's portrait of "An Old Jew." The painting was sold to the Agnews by M. Delaroff, a private collector, for $27,500. M. Delaroff bought the picture a few years ago for $20,000 from Countess Adlerberg.

LAVA FLOWING ON 4 TOWNS

SANTA CRUZ, Teneriffe, Nov. 26.—Four towns in the path of the streams of lava that are thrown out by half a dozen craters are to-day threatened with destruction. The inhabitants of the apparently doomed towns are fleeing, and those of a fifth, Arguayo, have appealed for aid. The four chiefly endangered by lava are Tanque, Tamaimo, Chasna and Santiago.

The entire island is rocked almost continuously by the tremors that accompany the volcanic explosions and eruptions. The ashes darken the sky over all the Canaries, floating many miles. Ravines and gullies are filled with lava. Flames are shot from the peaks to great heights, sometimes reaching more than 1,000 feet.

FRUIT STEAMER ASHORE.

KINGSTON, Jam., Nov. 26.—The wrecker Premier was to-day engaged in attempting to float the Norwegian bark Westland, which was driven ashore at Port Maria during the recent hurricane. The fruit steamer Juan is ashore at Oracabessa.

CAN EAT WELL AND SLEEP WELL NOW

Debilitated, Languid, Nervous, Dyspeptic Sufferers Will Be Interested in This Case.

Pure, red blood has well been called the vital principle of life for upon it the tissues of the body live. It goes to practically every part of the body, carrying nourishment and oxygen, taking up the wastes and so changing them that they can be cast out of the system. As our every act results in the breaking down of the tissues and the formation of waste materials, the body is in a constant state of change. To maintain health, strength and life, the blood must be pure in order to replace these tissues with plenty of fresh nourishment and to rid the body of its waste material.

The value of a reliable tonic medicine is well shown in the case of Mr. John H. Moss, of No 3 Phillips street, Methuen, Mass., who is employed in the Arlington Mills. He says:

"I had been ailing for a number of years before I became seriously ill. I was all run down, had a tired, languid feeling and had no ambition for work. I put in many a day at the mill when I should have been in bed. In the morning my tongue would be thickly coated. I had sick headaches frequently, was reduced in flesh and my complexion was sallow. I could eat but little food.

"I was treated by a number of doctors in Lancashire, England, where I was living, but none of them helped me. Then I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a paper and started using them. I could see a change almost at once and they soon had me in good condition. I could eat and sleep well and my complexion became clear.

"Since then my wife, who had suffered from fainting spells for years and was all run down, gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and has been in good health ever since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be used in all diseases caused by thin or impure blood, as anæmia, rheumatism, stomach trouble, after-effects of the grip and fevers, neuralgia, sick headaches and many forms of weakness.

We have issued a new edition of our diet book which we will send free on request to any address.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y about the diagnosis and cure of your indisposition, don't get anxious. Your safest remedy is within reach of your hand. Most disorders have their origin in neglect or over-crowding of the intestinal tract. The stomach is gorged, the intestines are inactive, the liver is torpid, and the entire body is in the grip of pain and disease. Don't experiment with unknown drugs. Many cures are worse than the disease. Use what for three generations has been found safe and sure.

which cured our grandparents of their ills, and which is as good and effective to-day as then. Beecham's Pills never fail to relieve the troubles connected with the stomach, bowels, liver or kidneys. They are good if taken in the earlier stages, and most valuable when taken to relieve aggravated forms of trouble. They strengthen the digestive organs and make new healthy blood. NAT GOODWIN OUT BUT NOT QUITE DOWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—"You can't beat Wall street. The curb brokers have got you coming and going. They don't know what your property is worth; all they want to know is how much they can get out of the public for the stocks. If you don't want to do as they do they'll put the price so low that they'll ruin you."

This is Nat Goodwin's view of the "lamb's" position in Wall street, as the comedian told it to-day at the Annex hotel where he and his wife, formerly Edna Goodrich, are stopping before going to their Winter home at Santa Monica, Cal.

"I have just come from the east and I'm practically out of the mining and oil lands business," continued Mr. Goodwin. "It will be only a short time before I've got rid of them all and I'm going back to the stage.

"You've heard the old saying, 'Cobbler, stick to your last.' That's me exactly.

"Not that I'm broke or anything like that, but I don't like the game. The only right way is to get your money out of the ground and not out of the public. I had some properties that I thought and still think were worth a ton of money, but I'm getting rid of everything. I don't want any more of it.

"Those curb brokers in New York can make the price of a stock anything they want. They'll throw a bunch of shares on the market and hammer the price down. And then everybody thinks you're crooked. They're published fabulous and libelous tales about me, but they won't get a chance any more.

"I've got a little attack of nerves and I'm going to rest up at our Winter home for about three months."

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin expect to leave Sunday night for Santa Monica.

BODY OF BANKER'S CHILD IS STOLEN

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 26.—The sexton of Highland Cemetery found that by night the grave of the infant son of Harfield Conrad, son of William G. Conrad, the Great Falls banker and former candidate for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination, had been opened and the body stolen. The only reason which can be ascribed for the crime is that the perpetrator desired to hold the body for ransom. The child died a year ago.

MRS. VANDERBILT DINES 400 BOYS

NEWPORT, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt gave her sixteenth annual Thanksgiving dinner to the boys of Newport. Most of them are lads who carry papers and deliver messages. More than 400 of them sat down in Masonic Hall to turkey and the things that go with it. Smith's orchestra was there, and the lads joined in the choruses of the popular songs. At the close of the dinner a box of candy was given to each one to carry home to his smaller sister or brother.

CIGARMAKER GONE FROM HIS HOME, FAMILY IN NEED

Louis Hernon

On last Monday morning Louis Hernon of No. 105 Main street, Medford, left for his work at the Traiser's cigar factory, at the corner of Howard and Court streets, Boston, and has not been seen since.

He is thirty-eight years of age, five feet six inches tall, has black hair, and large eyes and is a native of Belgium. At the time of his disappearance he wore a dark blue striped suit and a black derby hat.

His wife is left with five young children, the oldest being eight and the youngest a child of five months. They need his support. Before leaving for work on Monday he cut off his mustache, and it is supposed by his wife that he intended to change his appearance before leaving home.

WALTHAM MINISTER HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

The Rev. Rosco L. Green, a wealthy Methodist minister of Waltham, was severely injured when an electric car struck his automobile, turning it completely around and throwing the machine over a sidewalk onto a lawn.

Dr. Green was thrown against the steering gear of the machine and then onto the ground.

He was taken to his home at No. 125 Ash street, and Dr. F. M. Stiles was summoned.

The body of the automobile as well as the two forward wheels was demolished, entailing a loss of several hundred dollars.

OLD FIREMAN DEAD.

LYNN, Nov. 26.—Charles H. Downey, for forty-five years a member of the Lynn Fire Department, died to-day of heart disease, at the age of eight-two. He was appointed chief after the big fire of 1889 and held that office for sixteen years.

PRESS AGENTS MAKE MERRY OVER DINNER

"Who will carve the turkey?"

"The waiter will carve the turkey. That's what he's here for. This isn't the Old Homestead."

"Dont' you wish it was, fellows?"

Silence for a breath, and then an uproar of gaiety.

The press agents had a Thanksgiving dinner at Clark's Hotel. There were a dozen of them, representing all the big shows in town, and the five that are booked for next week.

"Did you ever blow into a strange town, where you didn't know anybody, on a holiday and see them having family dinners while you had to eat alone. Pretty tough," declared Robert E. Long of the Elsie Ferguson company. "That's why we decided to get together and have a Thanksgiving dinner of our own."

"I only hope they don't ring in a property turkey on us," declared Al Strassman of the Hattie Williams company. "I couldn't stand that, for I have brought my appetite."

A press agent is supposed to be a highly exuberant and humorous person, but it is a fact that during the first half hour of the dinner the expert stenographer who was taking down the epigrams for future use fell asleep; there was nothing doing.

"Gimme me some more turkey. I don't want that dark meat; nix on the bones."

"Benjamin, you don't have to eat all that celery because it happens to be in front of you. Pass it along."

Such conversational gems as the above were dropped, but that was about all.

However, after a grim pathetic skeleton was all that remained of the turkey—of the two turkeys, for there were two—things began to pick up. Cigars were lighted and and fizzing stuff began to brighten things.

"Gentlemen are you ready for the speeches?"

"I move that we don't have any speeches," shouted George Nolan of "The City."

"Second the motion," cried Roy Crandall of "The Love Cure."

"There will be speeches," said the chairman firmly. He was John Murray, general press representative of Klaw & Erlanger. "What's a dinner without speeches. I will make one myself."

"What can be more pathetic," said Mr. Murray, "than the poor lonely press agent, that blushing little flower; (cries of "hear, hear,"); think of him in his little hotel room, wondering how he will spend Thanksgiving. Can you see the tears stream down his face when he remembers that he will be far away from the loved ones at home. Hear his sobs."

Mr. Murray was very lachrymose a second later when a boiled onion came sailing against his eye, and he decided that further speaking would be impracticable.

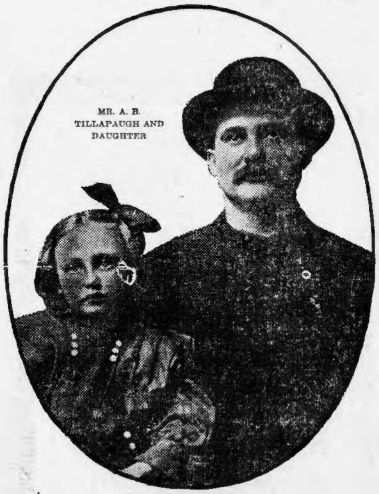
However, the party did very well. There was much singing although there was considerable discussion as to what should be sung. Harry Alward wanted "The Circus Man" lyrics used, and after a hard fight won, but it turned out that there weren't any, and he was covered with confusion and other things.

Everybody knew "Jingle Bells" and "Seeing Nellie Home," and as a finale they sang "Good Night, Ladies."

WOMAN SEEKS LONG LOST BROTHER

Mrs. A. M. Rodgers of No. 43 Pleasant street, Fall River, has appealed to the BOSTON AMERICAN to aid her in finding her brother, Joseph A. Lima, formerly of New Bedford, where he was born forty-five years ago. The last she heard about him was that he was employed by the Panama steamship line running out of New York. She thinks he is in California or Oregon.

Picture of Health After Whooping Cough



MR. A. B. TILLAPAUGH AND DAUGHTER

Mr. A. B. Tillapaugh, of Chesterton, Ind., says his little daughter's lungs were left very weak after a severe attack of whooping cough. For years they tried various remedies without good results; finally, when the case seemed almost hopeless they tried Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey with marvelous success.

Mr. Tillapaugh writes: "My little daughter. who is now 7 years old, at the age of 7 months had a severe attack of whooping cough, which left her lungs in a very weakened condition. She grew worse in spite of all we could do. Different doctors prescribed for her, but without effect. We dragged along this way for nearly six years, almost hopeless but not conquered.

"A friend advised Duffy's Malt Whiskey and I procured a bottle. That was about five months ago. The first dose seemed to help her, and she is now at school and I think about cured. Thank God, my little girl is now the picture of health."

The little sufferers from whooping cough, measles and the other diseases incident to childhood often become physical wrecks from the severity of the attacks and yield to other diseases vastly more fatal. Want of nutrition from impaired digestion is usually the cause, but the kidneys, the lungs and air passages may be affected, and this too often leads to serious complications. What the little sufferers need, as in the case of Mr. Tillapaugh's daughter, is a remedy that will prove a food and a medicine at the same time. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is this remedy in perfection. It excites the proper digestion and assimilation of the food by its influence upon the salivary glands of the mouth and the gastric glands of the stomach; without requiring digestion, it is burned or oxidized within the body, and, like other foods, produces heat and energy. By its tonic and soothing influence upon the physical and mental forces it calms nervous irritability and gives tone and vigor to the body.

STORROW REITERATES FITZGERALD CHARGES, REFUSES JOINT DEBATE

reasons for his failure to do so were disclosed at a public hearing held by the commission in March, 1908.

Refuses Joint Debate.

"I do not wish to over-exaggerate in the least the defects of your administration or to deny that before you were Mayor the city had suffered from maladministration. I am very glad that you have the resources and ability, as a political orator of exceptional capacity to fully present your defence in a thoroughly effective manner.

"No good would be accomplished by your entering into a joint debate in regard to your administration, the facts concerning which are fairly well understood by the general public. My campaign, and my administration, if elected, will not be conducted in accordance with your desires or your methods.

(Signed) "JAMES J. STORROWS."

PASTOR RAPS FITZGERALD

The Rev. Francis H. Rowley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said to-day that, in declaring from his Thanksgiving pulpit that for Boston to re-elect former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald would be to its everlasting shame, he had not intended to enter into political details, but merely to go on record as favoring Mr. Storrow's candidacy.

The denunciation of the Fitzgerald candidacy and the support of Mr. Storrow was given in brief introductory remarks, preceding Mr. Rowley's sermon on "The Thanksgiving of the Christian Optimist."

In this introduction Mr. Rowley referred to local affairs and then said:

"It is an occasion for sincere gratitude that a man of irreproachable character and splendid capacity to serve his fellows has been found willing to accept the nomination for Mayor. With Mr. Storrow in the field, it seems incredible that the city, still in its best life dominated by the principles of its Christian ancestry, should do anything but give him a magnificent victory at the coming election.

"For Boston to re-elect Mr. Fitzgerald with the record he has made while once in office would be to its everlasting shame."

This pulpit indorsement of Mr. Storrow and its scathing summary of the Fitzgerald candidacy naturally have created a tremendous amount of discussion. In political circles to-day there is much comment on the sermon and on its possible effect in the campaign.

ASK COLLINS TO WITHDRAW

Ex-Representative Walter L. Collins of Ward 20 will probably be dropped from the Citizens' Municipal League councilmanic slate of nine named last Tuesday.

Already Collins has been approached and urged to withdraw, it being pointed out that his declination to serve would enable the committee to name another candidate who might make the ticket more "representative" and eliminate the fault which Mr. Storrow finds with it.

Collins is one of the three candidates from Dorchester on the ticket and was among the original slate named by ex-Mayor Nathan Matthews and his committee. His withdrawal would still leave another Ward 20 man on the slate in Alderman Frederick J. Brand.

It is said that Collins is not disposed to look favorably upon the proposition advanced to him to withdraw. He was put upon the ticket without solicitation and evidently without much investigation as to whom he favored for Mayor, for it is authoritatively stated that Mr. Storrow is his second choice. Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald is said to be his first.

Collins has the reputation of being one of the best vote-getters in Ward 20. He is an attorney and won a seat in the House of Representatives as a Democrat from Ward 20 in 1905. He is the first and only Democrat to win since the ward has been redistricted.

News of Partyless Politics.

Only forty-six days more.

John C. Hadlock of "home rule" fame says he's a mayoralty candidate. How many more?

Fitz and Hibbard met yesterday for the first time since the campaign began. Both admitted that Storrow will be third.

So both the Citizens' League slate and the politicians' slate for the City Council are to be changed? And this after many have signed the slate nomination papers. The people nominate under Plan Two, all right.

J. Edward Mullen wanted the job of purchasing agent for the city of Boston awfully bad. He got it. Now he's getting what goes with it. Mr. Mullen didn't cry when his predecessor was mauled by the Fin. Com. Maybe the predecessor is crying now.

Labor leaders say that their followers won't do a thing to the City Council slate adopted by the Citizens' Municipal League conven—beg pardon, "meeting." They are angry at the manner in which Alderman J. Frank O'Hare was turned down. O'Hare, by the way, says that the league's failure to nominate him will win more votes for him than anything else.

It was rather unfortunate that both the statements issued last night by Mayoralty Candidate Nat Taylor should get into the morning newspapers. The first dignifiedly disdained (see Webster's Dictionary) noticing the Storrow-Fitz controversy. The second charged Messrs. Storrow and Fitzgerald with rushing into print so that the public won't forget they're in the race. Bad slip, Nathaniel, for a newspaper man.

Mark Stone, recommended by the Citizens' Municipal League as a desirable candidate for the new City Council, starts in with a clean slate by paying three years' poll taxes, plus the interest charges. Step up, everybody, and give a correct imitation of a candidate for the City Council. Too bad they couldn't have nominated Nathan Matthews for some public office. Perhaps he'd go up and pay some of those taxes that he dodged.

Some very good friends of former Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil are telling him that he made a mistake in not declaring himself a candidate for Mayor the day after Plan Two was adopted. If Mr. O'Neil is more anxious to see Fitzgerald defeated than he is to see himself elected, it would have been a fine move. His candidacy would have defeated Fitz. But it would also have defeated Mr. O'Neil himself.

Mrs. Julia Duff may find a good campaign argument in the recent appointment of four women to the Board of Education by the Mayor of New York. Chicago, too, has recently placed a woman at the head of its educational department. "Boston," says Mrs. Duff, "was among the first, if not the very first, city to place a woman on the School Board. I feel I can be elected, because when running independently I have polled 35,000 votes. I feel that I can bring an experience that none of the other candidates can bring to the work, namely, thirty-two years of active work in Boston public schools."

A half day's suspension was passed out to one of the street department laborers for neglecting his work to talk politics. The punishment was given after an order had been sent out warning laborers and men of the street cleaning squad not to discuss politics on the street with friends when they were on duty.

Street Commissioner Gallivan had planned running for mayor a great deal more seriously than many of the politicians imagined, as one of the candidates for mayor discovered when he attempted to secure billboard spaces in South Boston. The commissioner had an option on all the available billboards in the Peninsula district and only two days ago released it.

It's a little bit early for bets, but here is a small one that was made at the Storrow headquarters, Press Agent Robert L. Norton being the stakeholder: Ten dollars even that Storrow does not get 40,000 votes.

The decision of the excise board that no more nomination papers can be circulated in saloons has hit some of the professional signature chasers a hard blow. Judging from the appearance of many of the papers thus far filed with the election board the barrooms have been prolific sources of signatures.

Mayor Hibbard is said to be particularly piqued at the fact that Guy Ham has allied himself with the Storrow forces. He appointed Ham, the "honest lobbyist," to represent the city at the charter hearings, for which he received $1,000, also gave his father an appointment as district foreman in the Dorchester yard of the street department, and has granted many small favors to the Ward 20 leader. "There is no such thing as gratitude in politics," said Secretary White when he learned that Ham had deserted the Hibbard camp.

"I came over the ferry last year with 4,100 majority, and I will make it 5,000 this year," said Alderman "Tom" Giblin, addressing a number of politicians at City Hall. "Five thousand is a heavy load; you want to be careful the boat doesn't sink," remarked Councilman "Tom" Joyce, who is opposed to the East Boston Alderman.

Aldermanic candidates are now awaiting with anxiety the drawing for places upon the ballot. To be first means about 3,000 votes for the ordinary candidate, according to the "pols."

BRITISH COLUMBIA BACKS RAILWAY PLAN

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 26.—The policy of the McBride government in offering to aid the Canadian Northwestern Railway lines through the province was upheld in the elections yesterday. Returns from thirty-six of the forty-two districts show that at least thirty-two of Mr. McBride's supporters have been elected to seats in the provincial government. Two liberal and two Socialist candidates also were elected, while John Oliver, leader of the opposition, who ran for two seats, was defeated for both.

DENY DE RUNSEN IS BRYCE'S SUCCESSOR

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The British Foreign Office to-day informed the American News Service that the statement that Ambassador Bryce was to be succeeded at Washington by Sir Maurice de Bunsen, now ambassador at Madrid, was without foundation. LETTERS TELL OF SCIENTIST PEACE MOVES

How the members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of New York, of which Mrs. Augusta Stetson was leader, resolved to be loyal to Mrs. Eddy Baker Eddy and to the decision of the Mother Church Boston in the Stetson crisis, is told for the first time in letters published in the current issue of the Christian Science Sentinel.

Shortly before the trial of Mrs. Stetson Mrs. Eddy wrote a letter to the New York congregation. The trustees of the New York church replied on December 15, the day on which Mrs. Stetson's trial began, as follows:

Letter to Mrs. Eddy.

New York, Nov. 15, 1909.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, Brookline, Mass.:

Beloved Leader—It is with deepest gratitude that we acknowledge and thank you for your earnest letter of the 13th inst., with its owrds of love and benediction. As at all times, this board of trustees cheerfully complies with the advice you give, prompted by the obedience of love, and confidence in the sure guidance of the beloved Lader whom God has so highly honored.

Your letter was read to our church at its meeting to-day, and all were blessed with its happy and healing influence. In quiet assurance, we await any further leadings that your wisdom may indicate, in view of the importance of the questions involved. In unswerving loyalty, yours faithfully.

E. F. HATFIELD.
Chairman of Trustees.

Resolution of Loyalty.

This letter from the trustees brought fourth a reply from Mrs. Eddy to the New York church. Its harmonizing effect may be inferred from the following reply and resolution which the New York church sent on November 18 through Virgil O. Strickler, its first reader:

New York, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1909.

Beloved Leader—On last Monday, when your wonderful letter was read at our church meeting, speaking, "Peace, be still," to the waves of mortal thought, there was no opportunity to frame a fitting response to express the deep appreciation of the church and congregation for the great service you had rendered in thus guiding the church through its most serfious crisis. At our Wednesday evening meeting last night, however, the inclosed resolution was unanimously adopted by the great congregation that filled our church, and I send it to you with the love of all our people. I can assure you that the members of this branch church are loyal Christian Scientists, and that they will stand like a rock in support of the Mother Church directors. Faithfully yours,

VIRGIL O. STRICKLER,
First Reader.

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, the members of this church on Monday, November 15, received from our beloved Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, words of advice so potent that not only was a crisis in the history of this church amicably settled, but dissensions in the church were thereby healed; and

Whereas, a proper acknowledgment of the benefits so received by us, and of our gratitude therefor, is most befitting;

Therefore, be it resolved by this church and congregation here assembled, that we hereby extend to Mary Baker Eddy assurances of profound gratitude and love, and of our intention to follow her advice, both in the letter and in the spirit, to support the directors of the Mother Church, and unite with those in our church who are supporting the Mother Church directors; that we pledge anew the devotion of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of New York city, to her as our Leader, and to the church founded and constituted by her, the Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

I hereby certify that the foregoing was unanimously adopted by the members and congregation of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York, N. Y., at the Wednesday evening meeting, November 17, 1909.

VIRGIL O. STRICKLER,
First Reader.

"False Beliefs Healed."

A telegram, assuring Mrs. Eddy of the loyalty of the New York church, was also forwarded on the 16th., as follows:

New York, Nov. 16, 1909.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, Chestnut Hill, Mass.:

Your owrds, read at the meeting of First Church of Christ, Scientist, yesterday, healed the false beliefs that some had entertained concerning their duty toward the Mother Church directors and those who stood with them. The instant compliance with your advice proves that the members of the church are loyal to your teachings, and that nothing can swerve them from their steadfast adherence to principle.

VIRGIL O. STRICKLER,
First Reader.
ELLA G. YOUNG,
Second Reader.

When The Stomach Stops

Working Properly, Because There Is Wind In It, Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to Set It Going Again.

A Trial Box Free.

THE DOCTORS call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distressing state of things it is. It is a serious condition of this great motor organ. Always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to bad and fatal results. The stomach embarrassed and hampered with wind, cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows, and this has a train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable boon.

ALL THIS IS EXPLAINED in doctor books; how undigested food causes gases by fermentation and fomentation, in which process some essential fluids are destroyed—burnt up—wasted by chemical action, followed by defective nutrition and the distribution through the alimentary tract of chemically wrong elements, and as a consequence the stomach and entire system is starved. Plenty of food you see, but spoilt in preparation and worse than worthless.

A DERANGED STOMACH is the epitome of evil; nothing too bad to emanate from it, but the gas it generates is probably its worst primary effect, and the only way to do away with this is to remove the cause. STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS go to the root of this trouble. They attack the gas making foods and render them harmless. Flatulency or wind on the stomach simply cannot exist where these powerful and wonder-working little tablets are in evidence.

THEY WERE MADE for this very purpose, to attack gas-making foods and convert them into proper nutriment. This is their province and office. A whole book could be written about them and then not all told that might be told with profit to sufferers from this painful disease, dyspepsia. It would mention the years of patient and expensive experiment in effort to arrive at this result—of failures innumerable and at last success. It would make mention of the different stomach correctives that enter into this tablet and make it faithfully represent all.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS are not alone intended for the sick, but well folks as well; for the person who craves hearty foods and wants to eat heartily and run no risk of bad effects they act like a charm and make eating and digestion a delight and pleasure. They keep the stomach active and energetic and able and willing to do extra work without special labor or effort. Don't forget this. Well people are often neglected, but the STUART DYSPEPSIA TABLETS have them in mind.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE will be sent any one who wants to know just what they are, how they look and taste, before beginning treatment with them. After this go to the drug store for them; everywhere, here or at home, they are 50 cents a box, and by getting them at home you will save time and postage. Your doctor will prescribe them; they say there are 40,000 doctors using them, but when you know what is the matter of yourself, why go to the expense of a prescription? For free trial package, address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Michigan.

P. S. Better send today for samples of the tablet. You will get quite a box of them.

SMUGGLERS FREED; SEIZE $1100 LACES

Surveyor of the Port Jeremiah J. McCarthy was notified to-day that two smugglers were found on board the Cunarder Saxonia when the ship docked in East Boston yesterday. The smuggled goods were seized, but the persons bringing them in were allowed to go. Miss Djilda Nelson, a second cabin passenger, carried a false bottomed trunk in the secret tray of which were found valuable laces and dresses. W. F. Taylor attempted to bring in three large, mysterious looking bags which the inspectors found contained valuable Irish and continental laces.

The seized goods were sent to the appraisers to be valued. Their value is about $1,100.

Are Given Freedom.

The local customs officers believe that the two people were smuggling in the goods for friends, perhaps dressmakers, in this country.

Miss Nelson, two women traveling with her, and Mr. Taylor was detained on the dock until an examination was made by the customs officers. They at first feared that there might be a smuggling plot to get the goods into the port on a holiday, when, it was thought, the inspection of passengers' baggage would not be very thorough.

The inspectors finally satisfied themselves that the ends of justice would be served in simply seizing the goods, so allowed the detained persons to go. If it is found during the investigation, which is still on, that the two persons were members of a conspiracy to defraud the government they will be arrested. Individual smugglers seldom are arrested, except when the goods which they attempt to smuggle in are worth many thousands of dollars.

Mr. Sleep Was Awake.

The discovery of the two smugglers yesterday was due to Inspector William J. Sleep, who, though tired from a long day's work of examining baggage, was very much awake. As he was turning over the goods in Miss Nelson's trunk his knuckles struck the false bottom, which gave forth a hollow sound. In this same way he found recently a secret bottom in a passenger's trunk beneath which was $6,000 worth of coral. This was seized, but the passenger was allowed to go free.

FOOTBALL DEATH LIST FOR 1909 EXCEEDS ALL RECORDS AT 29 KILLED

With twenty-nine fatalities and at least twenty serious, if not fatal, injuries, the 1909 football season, just closed, holds the mortality record over all previous years. In 1908 there were thirteen deaths from football. In 1907 there were fourteen; 1909 exceeds both.

This fearful death-roll has been made in spite of the so-called "open plays" and the pretence of safer style of game.

Of minor injuries there are no end. They range from dislocations and sprains up to broken bones, loss of eyesight and other impairment to the senses.

Two fatalities brought football peril sharply home to Greater Boston. One was the death of Cadet Eugene Byrne of West Point, who was fatally hurt in the Harvard-West Point game. The other was the death of Raymond Thurston of Cambridge, who succumbed to paralysis, which he suffered while playing at Phillips Exeter Academy.

Tragic Climax Reached.

The football season of 1909 came to a tragic climax on Thanksgiving Day with two probably fatal injuries on the gridiron. Cadet Fred Webster, centre rush of the Virginia Military Institute eleven, was caught in a mass play during a game with Davidson College at Lynchburg, Va. Webster suffered concussion of the brain. It is feared that his neck is broken also.

Quarterback Harold Cole of Wittenberg was kicked in the head and probably fatally hurt while making a flying tackle on a forward pass during a game between Wittenberg and Oberlin at Springfield, Ohio.

It is expected that the incoming legislatures of many States will pass anti-football measures this Winter, so great is the opposition arising to the game in any form. The death of Cadet Byrne at West Point resulted in the cancellation of the entire remaining Army schedule of games. This summary action was possible at a government institution.

The Year's Death List.

The long death list and the roll of seriously, if not fatally, injured for 1909 is as follows:

WORCESTER PLAYER DEAD FROM INJURIES OF TWO YEARS AGO

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Thomas A. McKenna is dead to-day at the Murray Hill Sanitarium as a result of injuries received in football two years ago. He was at different times a prominent member of the Holy Cross and Fordham football and baseball teams. Two years ago when on the Worcester eleven he was badly hurt and intestinal trouble resulted, eventually bringing death.

THREE-YEAR-OLD GIRL LEFT DESTITUTE

A three-year-old girl with large blue eyes and light curly hair appeared in the South Boston Police Court to-day as a destitute child. Her name is Katherine M. Major. Two weeks ago her mother went insane. Her father worried over his wife's fate and took to drink, neglecting the child. The little girl was cared for by neighbors until to-day, when the authorities called for her. Judge Fallon sent her to the Home for Destitute Catholic Children in Harrison avenue.

OLD-TIME BALL PLAYER IS INSANE

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 26.—Alfred Hindle, aged fifty-eight, an old-time baseball player, was taken into custody by the police to-day when he was found to be demented. On the way to the police station in the patrol wagon he attempted to cut his throat with a pocket knife. He was sent to the Farnhurst Asylum. Hindle was manager, captain and catcher of the Quickstep baseball team of this city when the team won the national championship in 1872.

HOOKWORM AS DIVORCE CAUSE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—Judge Graham has divorced Anita Coover from David R. Coover. The "hookworm" was the cause. "My husband was dull, stupid, lazy, languid, slow," said Mrs. Coover.

"He must have been a victim of the 'hookworm'" said the court. Mrs. Coover expressed some doubt as to this diagnosis, but Judge Graham stuck to his opinion and granted the decree.

GIRLS' STRIKE MAY SPREAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A general strike of all the girls in the shirt waist manufacturing industry through the East—in New York State, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—was threatened to-day because of the employers in New York city trying to have their contracts fulfilled out of town.

The 31,000 girl strikers here are determined not to be circumvented in this way.

An appeal is to be sent to out of town unions.

Victory has already been gained by the strikers, for 9,000 of their number went back to work to-day under the conditions exacted by the union—better wages, better hours and better working conditions in the shops. There were still 31,000 girls out of the original 40,000 who went out on strike.

JEW HOME DINNER.

YOUNG WIDOW GAGE'S BRIDE

CORONADO, Cal., Nov. 26.—Lyman J. Gage, former secretary of the treasury, was married to Mrs. Ada Ballou, daughter of George M. Ballou, at her parents' home in Coronado. Gage is seventy-three and the bride a widow of thirty-five.

Gage for two years has made his home in the Theosophical community at Point Loma, presided over by Katherine Tingley. Whether Gage is a real member of the community is not known, but he has been closely associated with Mrs. Tingley.

Mrs. Gage married Robert Lupton Crane in 1902, but they were divorced two years later in New York. She became well-known later as a member of the sextet in one of the "Florodora" companies.

Gage has been married twice before.

Fighting the Plague.

In street cars and elevated trains of New York City this sign has been displayed:

If You Have Consumption

Do not give it to others by spitting in the car. If you do not have it, don't let others give it to you by spitting. Consumption is caught mainly through dry sputum. If you must spit, use your handkerchief.

Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
[illegible] Schermerhorn St.

This is one of the weapons employed in the fight to prevent the spread of the great white plague. The deadly germs of tuberculosis, lurking in the mucous discharged from consumptive lungs, get into the air and are breathed into the lungs of healthy people, where, if there is any sore spot, or weakness left by a cold or other irritating disturbance, they fasten and claim another victim.

Don't neglect a cough or cold. To break up a cold quickly there is nothing so effective as the mixture of two ounces of Glycerine, a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every four hours. It clears the throat and bronchial organs, relieves hoarseness and heals irritations of the mucous surface quickly, and because of its purity is far preferable to the ordinary cough mixtures, most of which contain chloroform or other drug. It is claimed by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, that this mixture will break a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

DOES SCIENCE OF LONG LIFE GET REWARD?

Should the man of science who rids nature of an incubus, who finds cures for diseases, who limits or prevents scourges, and who thus lengthens human life, adds to our happiness, and aids us to better things, be rewarded coequally with the man of science whose inventions are destructive of life or merely conduce to the material comfort of the people?

This question was asked of the AMERICAN in a letter from the wife of a prominent physician, and was sent to Andrew Carnegie by the AMERICAN. In reply came the following letter:

Editor AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Certainly the doctor who makes a discovery that preserves or lengthens life should be rewarded handsomely, but there is danger that innumerable claimants would arise, presenting wonderful claims, and some sure means of preventing fraudulent claims would have to be found. Very truly yours, ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Views of Doctor's Wife.

The letter from the doctor's wife follows:

Editor AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—If a doctor discovers the cause, prevention and cure of a disease that is a scourge to the nation, should he not be paid by the nation? One who invents a submarine, an airship, a gun, or any kind of a machine that is of use to the government, is paid thousands of dollars, and his ideas are safeguarded so no one can make use of them without paying.

The doctor who discovers the hookworm, the cause of pellagra, the germ of tuberculosis, the mosquito in yellow fever and malaria, is a far greater benefactor than any of these. It requires years of hard study, hard labor and a great deal of hard cash to make him skilful enough to trace the cause of these diseases, and years more of experimenting and heartbreaking experience to find a remedy, and while he is using every faculty to the vanishing point in studying out these things, he and his family are dragged through purgatory in the effort to pay expenses.

What does he get for all this? Every original thought he has learned, his plan of treatment, his prescriptions, all are free to the world, and he gets not even a vote of thanks from the ruling powers. Is it right? Is he not entitled to some fruit from his labors as well as the inventor of a machine? If you can tell why a doctor's brain should be free plunder I wish you would do so. Yours, very truly,

A DOCTOR'S WIFE.

Wright Brothers Rewarded.

Perhaps the inventors of the aeroplane are the most favorable among these recently rewarded. Refusing to take advantage of the full rights of the Wright brothers' aeroplane, the American government opened the way for France, Germany, Italy and England to buy the rights. Italy paid the Wrights more than $200,000; France also paid a large sum, and Germany and England have made the brothers richer by more than a million dollars. The United States offered a $25,000 prize for an aeroplane that would carry a passenger forty miles an hour and 10 per cent. of the purchase price for each additional mile up to forty-four. This prize was captured at Fort Myer by Orville Wright, and $30,000 also was given to them by the government for one machine.

Hiram Maxim, an American, was knighted by England for his rapid-firing gun, and was paid for the rights. Another American, John P. Holland, who was recognized for his submarine boat, has made a fortune through the sale of his patents to foreign governments.

Distension Of The Stomach By Air

And Eructations of Gas Rapidly Relieved by Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges

Willow charcoal is the most important and the purest kind of charcoal obtainable. Wood consists of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, and when heated in a room where the supply of air is limited, the more volatile matters are burned away, and most of the carbon remains.

In a finely divided state charcoal not only condenses gases to a marvelous extent, but also has the power of absorbing coloring matters. It is a very rapid absorbent of gases of every kind, and is much used in the dissecting rooms and wards of hospitals for the removal of offensive odors.

In rooms which have been recently or freshly painted, a pan or other receptacle of charcoal allowed to remain therein over night will completely absorb and remove all the disagreeable paint-odor.

Physicians frequently employ charcoal for destroying the fetor of wounds, for which purpose it is applied in the form of a powder or poultice to gangrenous sores, ulcers, etc. It is also largely used in tooth-powders, as by its mechanical action it removes incrustations of the teeth, while by its chemical action it destroys fetor, or foulness of the breath.

In indigestion, accompanied by flatulence, or gas on the stomach, and belching, and in the colic of infants, or older persons, as well as the so-called "lead-colic," or "painter's colic," charcoal is by far the best and most powerful remedy that can be used.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges should be used frequently or constantly by painters or workers in lead, and all persons whose occupations make them liable to "lead colic." They should also be employed by anyone who suffers from those annoying symptoms of indigestion, such as fermentation, decomposition of food, flatulence, or gas on the stomach, colicky pains, resulting from the over-distension of the intestines with gas, and the rumbling noises of the bowels with which so many dyspeptics suffer, and which prove so annoying and embarrassing when occurring while in company.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are composed of pure willow charcoal mixed with honey, and are capable of absorbing one hundred times their own volume in gas; and by their rapid anti-fermentative, antiseptic, deodorizing and absorbent action prevent the possibility of colic or internal rumblings of gaseous products. They are absolutely harmless, and may be given freely to infants suffering from colic, and used just as freely by older persons who are annoyed by flatulence and gas eructations. In proof of the harmlessness of charcoal, a French physician was in the habit of taking fifteen ounces every day of his life, and recommended its abundant use to others.

Purchase a package of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges from your druggist today for 25 cents, and send us your name and address for free sample package. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MRS. STETSON IS CALLED HOME WRECKER BY WIFE NOTED ARTIST DESERTED

Mrs. Maybelle Christy, Howard-Chandler Christy, and their little daughter, Natalie.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Maybelle Christy, the beautiful wife of Howard Chandler Christy, model for his famous "American Girl," declared to-day that their home, which was idyllic for eleven years, had been broken up by the teachings of Mrs. Stetson, recently repudiated by the Christian Science Church.

She had just arrived from Zanesville, O., where she began suit for possession of her ten-year-old daughter, Natalie. The child had been mysteriously whisked away by the father, and detectives were sent out to trace him.

"Please do not ask me whether I will seek a divorce," she said, tearfully, when found in the apartment of her brother-in-law, C. F. Hall, at No. 629 West One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street. "I love Howard, and if it were not for Christian Science as taught by Mrs. Stetson, I would now be living happily with him.

"Mrs. Stetson and her practitioners have taught him that marriage is wrong; that there is nothing sacred in it. He has come to lose all sympathy and feeling. He is no longer the same man.

Takes Blame Herself.

"It is my own fault, in a way," she added sadly. "I took him to the First Church of Christ (Scientist) in this city and interested him in the religion taught there. At first he scoffed.

"Then he became very ill, and toward the end of the illness, after he had been benefited somewhat by the best specialists in the country, I persuaded him to go to one of Mrs. Stetson's practioners. He did, and before long he was healed.

"Not long after that this practitioner rose in the meeting and gave all credit of the healing to Christian Science, exaggerating what had been done previous; and ignoring the remarkable work of the skilled doctors.

"I wonder why she said all that!" exclaimed Howard when we arrived home.

"But, owing to his cure, he went on in blind faith that whatever was done was right.

"First, Howard was referred to as 'one of the jewels in Mrs. Stetson's crown.' Then they began to run my home. We were at that time delightfully situated in the Beaconsfield, in a comfortable, airy apartment, with a wonderful vista of the river and Riverside Drive. Howard was getting well. Little Natalie was happy. The servants were kind and thoughtful. And it seemed as if we were living almost in a paradise.

Told to Give Up Their Servants.

"Little Natalie came down with the measles, and the practitioners said that I was to blame for her illness.

"Affairs rapidly began to get worse. Some of Mrs. Stetson's practitioners explained to Howard the 'wickedness' of marraige, and finally persuaded him that what they said was the word of God.

"I pleaded that he give up this ridiculous belief and tried to awaken the old love which had made our home so happy. But he merely looked at me thoughtfully and in a far-away manner, as if to say, 'Sometime you will reach my mentel level and you will see that you are wrong now.'

"On July 3 he went away, first to Cuba and then out to Zanesville. Three times I have been to Ohio, hoping to make him understand how childish he was. But he seemed to be under a frightful mesmeric spell.

"Even now they are treating him, enforcing their beliefs on him, and even separating me from what is dearer than all in the world to a mother, her child.

Hints at Disclosures.

"But they will not go any further," Mrs. Christy cried, clinching her fist and striking angrily the arm of the mission chair in which she sat. "They dare not. If they continue to keep my home broken, keep my daughter away from me, I will tell things that I know.

"How it will end I do not know. But I am determined to have my child."

FORGERIES IN RUSSELL CASE, SAYS EXPERT

Dr. Albert H. Hamilton, a handwriting expert and authority on inks, employed by the United States government, a witness to-day in the Russell will contest, declared that many of the letters introduced in the case were forgeries. His testimony, corroborating as it did that of Expert William C. Hingston, created a sensation when it was uttered to-day.

The letters in question, according to witnesses brought here by lawyers for William C. Russell, were written by James Delbert Ruseau. Experts for William C. Russell declared that the writing of Ruseau was the same as that of Daniel Blake Russell. The letters were offered in an effort to prove that Daniel Blake Russell is really Ruseau and therefore an imposter in his claims for half of the Daniel Russell estate as the long lost son.

After being shown a number of letters Dr. Hamilton said: "Some of these letters were written by the same person who wrote the name Daniel Blake Russell in this album (referring to an album introduced by the lawyers for Daniel B. Russell). The others were written by another person entirely and were created and fraudulently devised with design to mislead and deceive someone when offered in evidence.

"Some of the most noticeable evidences of fraud in these letters are shown in the cancellation marks on the envelopes. Take this one for example. It is stamped Medora, North Dakota, March 28, 1905. It bears also the cancellation mark of Messina, New York, with the date March 31, 1905. My examination shows beyond a doubt that the cancellation mark of March 28, was put on last and that the New York mark was put on first. The ink used in these cancellations was something devised to imitate the government's stamping compound.

"This other envelope that I have examined bears a bogus cancellation mark. The original date on the envelope was 23, and it has been changed to 25. In the year date some figure has been substituted for the original one.

"Several envelopes that I have examined were addressed in pencil and then erased and addressed in ink. This is discernible to the naked eye. Some of the envelopes have been erased so much that the paper was worn thin."

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

Healthy Kidneys Are Vital

If Any of Your Family Either in This or Past Generations Have Been Troubled With Kidney Disease, Order a Test Made of Your Urine and Satisfy Yourself.

"Do you have pains in the small of the back?"
"Do you have scalding pains?"
"Are you troubled with vital weakness?"

If the answer is "Yes" to any of these questions, your kidneys are diseased.

Gentlemen—"Last Winter I contracted a severe cold, which settled in my back. I could not eat or sleep. My whole system was affected. I had severe pains in my neck. Nothing helped me. One day when I was almost in despair I read an advertisement of Warner's Safe Cure, which described my symptoms exactly. I sent for a bottle of your medicine and I am glad to tell you that I was cured. I have the highest opinion of Warner's Safe Cure, and heartily recommend its use."—Miss Nellie Jones, 193 Vance St., Memphis, Tenn.

We receive thousands of voluntary testimonials like the above from our patients, who cannot say enough in praise of Warner's Safe Cure, which has cured them of their kidney and liver troubles.

DO THIS:

If you suspect that your kidneys are diseased and discover that your urine is cloudy and milky, send us a sample for analysis and we will promptly give you the result of our discovery. Sufferers with any of the above symptoms, will be glad to know that Warner's Safe Cure will surely relieve and cure the most distressing cases. No living physician can prescribe a medicine for the kidneys, bladder, liver and blood that equals Warner's Safe Cure.

Constipation and Biliousness

When the bowels do not move freely, it shows that the liver is inactive, and the bile, instead of being eliminated by the intestines, is taken up by the blood. In consequence the internal organs are deranged and you have a bilious attack. After frequent attacks the skin becomes sallow and rough. You are troubled with headache, coated tongue, bad breath, sour stomach, loss of appetite, pains in the side and you feel out of sorts, and should take Warner's Safe Pills, purely vegetable, sugar-coated, absolutely free from injurious substances, a perfect laxative. They cure Biliousness, Torpid Liver and Constipation. They do not gripe or leave any bad after effects.

BIG SHAKE-UP IS SCHEDULED IN NAVY YARDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Not since the Spanish war revealed the startling weakness of our military establishment and the subsequent drastic reorganization which Elihu Root, then Secretary of War, succeeded in bringing about, has there appeared a more general military upheaval than is the one foreshadowed in a report which the Swift board has made.

This is the board of eminent officers which the Secretary of the Navy appointed several months ago which has been collating material for its report, not only in this country but among the admiralties of all the military nations.

The report will not be made public for several days. But its essential features have become known. The chief one contemplates the establishment of an advisory board, modeled on similar lines to that of the British admiralty. The other looks to a thorough reorganization of navy yard administration.

These were the issues for which the "insurgents," as the younger and more progressive element of the navy have chosen to call themselves, have fought for so long, fought in Congress and out, before the Senate Naval Committee, before the public in inspired articles in magazines and newspapers.

The "insurgents" have won every essential point for which they fought. For them it is a sweeping victory. The power of the bureaus is curtailed and by the establishments of an advisory body's coordination of such little power as has been left the bureaus is assured. Nor does the reform stop here. It extends to the administration of navy yards, whose maladministration has been notorious for so long a time.

Here, instead of the many divisions of authority which have hitherto obtained, will be two great departments, interdependent and under the direct control of the line. One will be concerned with ship construction, the other with steam engineering. There will be sub-divisions, but all of these will be responsible to the two great heads.

In general the organization will be similar to that of the Cramps, or any of the other big and successful shipbuilding companies. There will be a difference, but the difference will be titular. The officer delegated as commandant of a navy yard will exercise the functions corresponding to those of a president of a shipbuilding company. The captains of navy yards will have duties analogous to those exercised by the general manager of a private shipbuilding plant.

RAILROAD MAN KILLED.

When Mrs. Edward L. Fay returned today to her home at No. 305 Washington street, Somerville, after spending Thanksgiving Day with relatives, she learned that her husband had been killed by a train in Yard 2 of the Boston & Maine railroad. Fay, who was an air brake inspector, had just tested the brakes on a train, and stepped in front of a moving engine. He lived less than an hour, and died in an ambulance on the way to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Final papers have gone to record to-day whereby Mr. Charles M. Conant of the Old South building has taken title to the estate of John A. Billings, at Atlantic, Quincy. This estate comprises 1,420,536 square feet, and Mr. Conant has already had plans made for cutting the same up into house sites.

Final papers have also gone to record whereby Mr. Conant has taken title to the property at Atlantic which was formerly owned by Arthur O. and Joseph S. Roberts. This particular tract of land is bounded by East Squantum street, Ocean street, Quincy Shore Reservation and Atlantic street, and contains about 368,829 square feet. Plans for the improvement of this particular estate have been recorded to-day.

The office of Charles M. Conant of the Old South building reports the passing of final papers for ten lots, Nos. 78-89, inclusive, on plan No. 3, at Atlantic, to Mr. Christopher F. Brown of Dorchester, who has made this purchase for the purpose of erecting single houses for sale. Mr. Brown has already commenced operations on the ground and will have his first house boarded in inside of the next ten days. It is contemplated that these particular houses will sell for about $4,000 to $4,200, including land.

Mr. Conant's office also reports the passing of final papers in a sale of three lots at Atlantic, to James Nicol of Falmouth. Alexander Nicol of Newport, R. I., a brother of James Nicol, will immediately commence the erection of three single houses upon the above three lots, and hopes to have same ready for occupancy by next March. Two of these houses are to be on East Squantum street.

The office of Charles M. Conant, through Frank C. Hyde, has sold twenty-one lots of land, situated at Allerton, Bayside and Kenberma, to a party who intends to improve. Price paid was greatly in excess of assessed value.

REFERENDUM ON BUDGET IS BALFOUR PLAN

LONDON, Nov. 26.—What is believed to be a desperate effort to avert, or at least ameliorate, the crisis hanging over the House of Lords is contained in a widespread report to-day that former Prime Minister Arthur J. Balfour will move in the House of Commons next week a resolution similar to that of Lord Lansdowne's in the House of Lords, to the effect that the entire budget question be referred to the people direct, in the form of a general election.

This, the Lloyd George adherents claim, is palpably an effort to save the tottering prestige and power of the peers by causing the Commons to accede to the upper body's hesitancy to reject and fear to meet the issue direct in any other way. Mr. Balfour's consistent denunciation of the budget, they say, qualifies him admirably to pull the Lords' chestnuts out of the fire.

HAVERHILL LICENSE BOARD IS UPHELD

HAVERHILL, November 26.—The municipal council to-day refused to remove the Board of License Commissioners, as urged by Rev. Frederick B. Greul. Mayor Moulton, Aldermen Harris and Killam voted for their retention and Aldermen Desmond and Bean for their removal. The minister petitioned on the ground that they had granted licenses to unfit persons.

MRS. BELMONT MAKES REPLY TO PARKHURST

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—"I suppose Dr. Parkhurst thinks he has a right to get back at me," said Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to-day, "and he took his Thanksgiving Day sermon as an opportunity to do so. He has a perfect right to retaliate, for I criticised him in a magazine article last month regarding the way he drove the women of the Tenderloin out of their quarters with absolutely no good result to the city."

It was after hearing read excerpts from the Thanksgiving Day sermon in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church by Dr. Parkhurst that Mrs. Belmont made the above remark. In this sermon, Dr. Parkhurst said in part:

Speaking of the recent convention held at Carnegie Hall by the woman suffragists, at which Mrs. Belmont presided, Dr. Parkhurst said:

"There was one woman very conspicuously present on the platform who had changed husbands, so, I suppose, there must have been something in her case that might give point to her remarks; yes, and there was another one there, too, prominently connected with the improvement—I mean the eruption—that also belonged to the migratory sisterhood. I do not mean at all that this agitation is in the interest of what might be called 'tandem polygamy,' but ladies should be made thoughtful by facts of that kind."

Alfio	Rodolfo Fornari

Musical Director	Arnaldo Conti
Regisseur General	Delfino Menotti

By ARTHUR de GUICHARD.

The double bill of "I Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" was once more the program at the Boston Opera House last evening.

The frequency of the performance of these operas should be an indication of their popularity. Their closely knit stories, culminating each in a swift tragic climax; their beautiful melodies, the clever symphonic treatment of the instrumentation with its short melodic phrases cutting like a sabre through the general weft of the harmonic tissue, the perennial freshness of the music and its spontaneity of inspiration the music and its spontaniety of inspiranever failing favor with which these operas is regarded.

ANTONIO PINI-CORSI.

But at each repetition of this double bill the insistent question presents itself: Why give a performance of these two operas on the same evening? Nothing is gained from it by the audience. All that can be done is to make a comparison of the style and methods of Mascagni and Leoncavallo. Everything else tends to create confusion instead of presenting contrasts, that always entertain and that augment artistic value.

Nearly the Same.

These operas concern the same people, in the same region, in about the same class of life, at the same period, and with the same costumes for the majority.

Indeed at a recent performance of them when Turiddu ("Cavalleria") and Canio ("Pagliacci") were sung by the same tenor, a curious illusion occurred to at least one of the auditors present. He followed with interest the story of Turiddu's philandering and his final chastisement.

Somewhat tired, however, he indulged in forty winks during the intermission and did not fully awake until the entrance of Canio beating a big drum in his little donkey cart.

He saw the same costumes on the same chorus, heard the same language set to music of a similar style. But, he could not for the life of him understand how Turiddu who had just been killed in the first, had come to life again as Canio in the second of the sympathetic murmurs and singing of the same peasants, wearing the same dresses.

His bewilderment was pardonable. Aside from this curious mix-up, it is a mistake in judgment and in artistic equipoise to form a double bill with two operas so similar in many respects, to say nothing of the strain upon the nerves and sympathies of the audience by the infliction of two such sanguinary stories in one night.

New Tenor Makes Debut.

They are both gems of the first water, but of the same kind; they require to be set with gems of other species to serve as a foil, like the blonde beauty with a bewitching brunette.

Excellent double bills could be composed with either of these operas and a choice of "Maestro di Cappelle," "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Barbiere di Siviglia," "Fra Diavolo," "Mignon," "Mireille," "Figlia del Reggimento" and many others of the lighter school of opera.

"I Pagliacci" was the opera chosen for the debut of Senor Enrique Goiri, the Spanish tenor, with the same principals who have been already heard in the supporting roles.

Very little can be said about Senor Goiri as Canio. He possesses a good natural lyric tenor voice that needs a great deal more preparation in the art of legato singing and in greater evenness of timbre. He had some good moments towards the end of the second act, which went to show what he could achieve with greater application to the art of singing.

The resonance of his voice was uneven and uncertain, now shown in good vibrant tones of a pure ringing quality, and then again in tones that failed to carry owing to a bad placement.

As an actor he lacked repose, and punctuated every few measures with a gesture that was wanting in meaning. Much of this may have been due to the nervousness of a debut. Yet it was evident that, thus far, Senor Goiri is an artist who possesses a voice of operatic calibre that requires careful cultivation in the technic and nuances of operatic art.

Boulogne's Stage Fright.

Miss Matilde Lewicka was again the Nedda. She gave an intelligent interpretation of the part and was particularly good in the duo and scene with Tonio. Giuseppe Picco lent excellent support in the part of Silvio. His voice was better and his dramatic impersonation of the character stronger than before.

The Tonio of Raymond Boulogne was the dominant feature of the performance. Now that he is more at home in the part and in the Italian words he gives a much more artistic rendering of the role. His singing of the prologue was vastly superior to anything he has yet done, and his comedy was always appropriate.

An unexpectedly comic incident was the stage fright of M. Boulogne who in his attempt to get "off" after the prologue could not find the opening in the curtains. That perhaps was the only moment in his career that he has had stage fright!

Guglielmo Balestrini, C. Stroesco and George Dunstan completed the cast.

The chorus again showed marked improvement both in attack and in the management of nuances. The fine body of women's voices sounded remarkably fresh, round and resonant, even the piano passages, especially in the first act.

Orchestra Too Strong.

Exception must be taken to the overbearing power of the orchestra. It is allowed to play too much in what has been the style in Wagnerian opera, in which full orchestral force is given irrespective of the strength of the soloist's voice, which is more often than not completely obscured.

As long as the orchestra plays with the voice its power must be modulated to the strength of that voice and not overpower it as it did last night.

The singing of the chorus in Act II. was an improvement.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" calls for little comment, its interpreters—save in one part—being the same as last week.

Mme. Boninsegna gave her well-known rendering of the part of Santuzza with more soberness of gesture and more reserved intensity of dramatic power; thus the interpretation gained immensely. Her singing was satisfactory.

Mr. Leliva showed to better advantage as Turiddu than when he last appeared in the character. His voice was in better order and he used it with more authority. But why does he play the part like a spoilt boy instead of as a strong, wayward man?

Miss Anna Roberts made her first appearance as Lola. Better judgment would have been shown had her debut been further delayed until she became mistress of her voice. The voice is good but altogether wanting in technic.

It is always regrettable when the possessor of a good voice, or her musical adviser, does not show sufficient judgment by waiting until the voice has gained surety of style and technic and more matured dramatic art before attempting a debut. One good point: Miss Anna Roberts has the voice; let her now finish its cultivation.

The orchestra was more subdued in "Cavalleria" while the improved singing of the chorus was again a feature which was particularly noticeable in the Allelina and the Brindisi, the nuancing from pianissimo to fortissimo being remarkably well done.

Mr. A. Luzzati was the conductor.

The operas for to-night are "Don Pasquale" with Miss Alice Nielsen and "Cavalleria Rusticana" with Florencio Constantino—an excellent double bill.

WEDS HIS BOOKKEEPER.

MEREDITH, N. H., Nov. 26.—The wedding of Samuel Grad, a wealthy merchant, to his pretty bookkeeper, Miss Grace Cowperthwaite of Hyde Park, took place today at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Maloon. Grad came to town a little more than a year ago as a pack peddler from Haverhill. Business favored him and he soon bought a large store. He employed many helpers, among them his pretty bookkeeper, who is now his wife. He fell in love with her so deeply that he did not continue worship at the synagogue, but instead became a Baptist, like his wife.

PLAN TO CALL OUT 1,500,000 FOR GOMPERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—On the day that Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison go to jail for contempt of court, 1,500,000 organized men and women affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will cease work and raise their voices in protest, if the plans proposed by Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the Women's National Trades Union League, can be carried out.

On her return from the convention of the Federation at Toronto, Mrs. Robins began her campaign for a "day of protest" which in effect will be a general strike for one day.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Chicago Women's Trade Union League Mrs. Robins laid her plans before her colleagues and found a ready response. Later prominent officials of labor organizations indorsed the idea, and will work to bring about its accomplishment.

All to Join in Protest.

It is an educational campaign that Mrs. Robins is advocating something, she said, that will bring it home forcibly to the workers that the courts are taking from them their inherent rights.

"On the Fourth of July," said Mrs. Robins, "the workers cease work and celebrate our independence as a nation. My idea is that a day should be set aside on which all the workers except those engaged in works of necessity or mercy should cease work and hold mass meetings of protest against the usurpation of power by the courts.

"It is a campaign of education that I propose and not a general strike. A strike means a revolt against the oppression of immediate employers. In friendliest terms with their immediate employers and still should raise their voices in protest against the filching of their rights by the courts for that is what it means.

To Take in Entire Country.

"It would be useless to set this day of protest on a holiday or a Sunday. It must be on a workday, so that in ceasing work the idea will be brought home to every worker. I wish to see the thing started in time so that all the unions throughout the country may have time to think it over.

"It would not necessarily have to be on the very day that Mr. Gompers and his associates go to jail, although that day would be preferable. It would have the same effect on any other day, provided it was general in all parts of the country.

"I know that many of the men prominent in organized labor circles throughout the country are in sympathy with the idea. It would prove a demonstration that would arouse the people from their lethargy and show them how their liberties are being gradually taken from them by the courts.

"I intend taking it up at once with our national executive board and having it agitated in every city where we have a local branch. I believe it can be successfully carried out if we begin in time and have the subject properly agitated."

ROMANIC IN PORT AFTER STORMY TRIP

The White Star liner Romanic reached her dock in Charlestown today after a stormy passage from Naples, Genoa and the Azores. The officers tried hard to get their ship into port on Thanksgiving Day, but the storm prevented. As a result the forty first cabin, eighty-six second cabin and 868 steerage passengers were a disappointed lot. Among the first cabin passengers were six Catholic teaching sisters who were sent out from the church in Italy to open a new parochial school in Lawrence. This is the first Italian parochial school to be established in New England. The teachers are Sisters Deborah Rolli, Marie Fondi, F. Greiveldinger, Albertina Keller, Teresa Mangini and Rosa Vagni.

HEAVY STORM LOSS IN SOUTHERN ITALY

ROME, Nov. 26.—A violent storm to-day swept Southern Italy and Sicily, doing great damage. Many vessels were sunk, and the first reports received stated that heavy loss of life was feared. Palermo, Sicily, was hit by the full force of the storm, many small vessels being sunk or driven aground. Steamers were forced to take to the open sea. Damage in the city itself is reported to have been serious. Bari, in Apulia, on the southeastern coast of the peninsular, was also the victim of the storm. There it snowed heavily. Fears were expressed for several vessels.

CHARLEY MURPHY AFTER PHILLIES; KLING, MANAGER

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—It was announced yesterday from an apparently authentic source that Charlie Webb Murphy, president of the Chicago Nationals is at the head of a western syndicate which has an option on a controlling interest in the Philadelphia Nationals. When the chubby little Chicagoan was in New York a short time ago, he insisted that his trip had nothing to do with baseball. Few who knew the way Murphy works believed that he was telling the whole truth. He was closeted with John T. Brush and Charles Ebbetts for hours but carefully evaded dropping a hint as to his real purpose.

"A player deal," said the knowing ones, until Murphy's antagonism to the league president Heydler led to the belief that the journey was for the purpose of canvassing votes against the executive.

Murphy Wants Power.

When Murphy returned to Chicago he suggested several names as possible successors to Mr. Heydler and the rotund one appeared cock sure that he had the votes necessary to elect whoever he put in nomination. Where the deciding was to come from was puzzling. Philadelphia appeared to hold the balance of power when the strength of the votes was canvassed. But Philadelphia was known to be arrayed against Murphy. News of the probable purchase of the Phillies is therefore strengthened by the Chicago man's attitude.

Senators McNichol and Wolfe hold a large block of stock in the Phillies. The Durham estate controls practically all of the balance. The two first named are the ones Murphy is said to have done business with, with the assurance from them that the Durham shares could also be secured.

Charles P. Taft, brother of President Taft, is the real owner of the Chicago Club. Murphy interested him in the scheme and made a great financial success of a club that had been paying only small dividends for years. During his visit here Murphy was in frequent conversation with Mr. Taft, a thing that did not cause much comment owing to their business relations. Now it must appear that Mr. Taft is open to get in on another good thing.

Kling for Manager.

Johnny Kling is spoken of as probable manager of the Phillies despite the fact that Billy Murray's contract has a year to run and that this same Murray declines to be ousted. Kling is a valuable piece of baseball property. Many consider him the best catcher in the business. His defection last year was due to a difference in salary. He will don the spangles again any time he gets his price.

The old question of syndicate ball will bob up if the deal goes through. In the past it has caused much discontent among the fans who want the sport kept clean. But Murphy is a hustler and a climber. Like his prototype, the tree squirrel he is a hard man to keep on the ground.

Indian Tom Longboat has a new manager, Sol Mintz of Montreal. Sol appears to have publicity ideas of his own. After long, deep thought Mr. Mintz devised a letterhead that will have them all talking. He dug up a picture of a log hut and another of Longboat's cottage in Toronto purchased with money he made running marathons. Now note where the thought creeps out. In large letters above the pictures he has printed:

"From Cabin to Castle." If such publicity doesn't get plenty of work for the Indian, what will?

MELLODY WINS OVER ROLFE

In a wild mixup was the way the Mellody-Rolfe bout at the National A. C. ended. The cause of the disturbance after Referee Harry Hodgkins had given the decision to Mellody when one of Rolfe's seconds, Dutch Freeman by name, who was in Dutch all right on this occasion, got excited over the award and handed the referee an unexpected wallop that upset him.

Then everybody near the ringside got busy and while the disorder prevailed the lights went out. When they were turned on again Freeman, the instigator of the live things, was stretched on the mat somebody having got close from an unseen angle.

Mellody had Rolfe beaten much to the disgust of the South Boston friends of the popular South Boston welterweight, as Honey was in superb form and going like a race horse. He started away fast and got a lead which Rolfe cut down some later but Mellody finished up better and had Rolfe in some bad positions only his gameness pulling him through.

Young O'Leary contributes the following: "Referring to the statement that Jack Dougherty has given out to the effect that Charley Goldman beat me, I want to say that Mr. Goldman has been very fortunate in never having met me inside the ropes. But I want to say that Dougherty's champion is the last man in the world to worry me. Still, I will fight him, winner take all." It's a leadpipe that John will be on the job before sunset. Results of Boxing Bouts

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 26.—Tommy Bergen of Lewiston and Kid Shea of Hallowell, went two six-round bouts before a crowd of 1,200 at City Hall. Honors were even at the end of the first bout with both men seemingly stronger at the end than when the bout commenced. In the second bout most of the rounds were Bergen's. In the third, fourth and sixth rounds Shea was stalling. Bergen landed several vicious right jabs to the jaw. Had a decision been given, Bergen would have received it.

LAWRENCE, Nov. 26.—Fighting Dick Nelson of New York got the decision over Frank Perron of Pawtucket, after twelve rounds of hard fighting at the Unity Club. Perron entered the fight tired after a twelve-round draw with Arthur Cote in the afternoon at Woonsocket, R. I. He gave a game exhibtion and managed to stay the limit. He was terribly punished by Nelson, but the latter could not put him away. Perron had a good punch and nearly scored several times.

In the preliminaries Kid Thomas and Young Rothwell fought a draw, Pat Rocco of Haverhill won from Kid Murphy of Lawrence in the fourth, and Young Delmont knocked out Kid McGurn in the third.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—It took a knock-down to put the proper fighting spirit into Unk Russell in the windup at the National A. C., for after Mickey Gannon floored him in the third round Unk went after the former Pittsburg lad in great shape. Russell was much stronger than Gannon at the finish, and was entitled to the close end of the decision.

Another sensational bout was that between Leo Houck and Joe Hirst. It was a good draw.

In the first round of his bout with Jack Fitzgerald, Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence broke his right hand. The bout had to be stopped.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 26.—Ben Douglas of Brooklyn and Charlie Sieger of Hoboken went to a draw in a fifteen-round bout at the Standard Athletic Club, Lymansville. The mill was exceptionally good, and both men went into it fiercely from the first. Douglas was heavier and taller than his opponent, but the smaller man was the faster and did not suffer from his size much.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Before a record breaking crowd at the Nonpareil A. C., Young Loughrey, the Manayunk fighter, won from Billy Donovan of Kensington in six rounds. Donovan forced most of the milling in the first two rounds, but could not stand the pace, and at the start of the third Loughrey forged to the front and jabbed Donovan until the end of the bout.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 26.—Young Jack Johnson of Boston outpointed Ollie Kallock of Shirley, Me., in six rounds at the Pastime Athletic Club.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Jack Leonard knocked out Jimmy Wilkinson of the Battleship Idaho in two rounds at the Broadway A. C.

VICTOR, Colo., Nov. 26.—Mont Dale of St. Louis knocked out Freddie Weeks of Cripple Creek in the eleventh round of a scheduled twenty-round contest. The knockout came in the middle of the round, following a succession of rights and lefts to the jaw, when the St. Louis boy landed hard in the stomach of the Cripple Creek fighter. Weeks put up a game fight, but was outclassed in every round, save the first, where he had a shade the advantage.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Yankee Swartz of South Africa outpointed Willie Houck in the windup at the Wayne Athletic Club. Swartz led in every round with the exception of the sixth.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Henry Myers of Boston and Charlie Hoffman of New York fought six good rounds to a draw. Danny Dunn of New York was to have fought Myers.

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

The snow on Wednesday did not improve the Greater Boston courses where play was scheduled for the Thanksgiving Day cups. Turkey was on the club menus and those who missed out on the turkey at home were able to get it at the club.

Throughout the Fall season there has been a great many players on the Commonwealth links. N. C. Cady, W. M. Johnson, Benjamin Sabin and H. C. Fabyan being among those who played once or more each week and who seem to get as much enjoyment out of a round now as when the links were in much better shape.

The fourth green at Brae-Burn has some rather exaggerated undulations that the greens committee are expecting Jack Frost to iron out a little. This rolling green might be made very pretty if the mounds on it were less severe.

A number of the players who are well known in the ranks of the advertising men in this country, have been around Boston lately and some have got out for a round on the links, C. Brewer Smith, Kurtz Wilson, Charles Presbrey and R. R. Whitman being the most prominent ones.

The huge water pipes that are now stretched out across the entire length of the Commonwealth Country Club links are a source of great enjoyment to the small boy. For "hide and seek" and "tag" and constant helloing is one way they have amused themselves, but another that I believe is laid at their door was the rolling of one of these pipes half way down the hill in back of the seventeenth green. If the boys did do it, it shows considerable strategy, for it takes about a dozen men and a four-horse team to move these pipes around, once they are on the ground.

TIE SCORE IN THE STADIUM

After skirmishing in forty minutes of hot action on the gridiron, inside the Stadium, the Battery A. and First Corps Cadets football teams came off the rain soaked field neither side having scored a point and the question of supremacy will have to be put over to be settled on the next Turkey day.

The Battery eleven appeared to like the slippery surface and had the Cadets worried, at times forcing their goal line.

Twice the Battery tried for a field goal in the first but missed and in the second period the ball was in the Cadet's territory most of the time.

RULE PROPOSED TO GIVE PITCHERS FULL CREDIT

Numerous suggestions are expected to be made this Winter to bring about the desired reform in the keeping of the averages of pitchers. In order that the fan who keeps a score will be able to figure out which of the opposing pitchers did the better work, it is desired that the new plan shall be as simple as possible.

A rule which it is believed would be a vast improvement over the present method of computing a pitcher's record—according to the number of games won and lost—and which would give a good idea of the effectiveness of the pitcher, despite what the score of the game shows, follows:

To compute the pitcher's average: Divide the total number of put-outs and the points charged against the pitcher into the total number of put-outs. A point shall be scored against the pitcher for each base hit made by the opposing team, each base on balls, each batsman hit by pitched ball, each sacrifice fly, each balk and each wild pitch.

Proposed Rule Illustrated.

To illustrate the proposed rule, take the game played on September 14 last between the Phillies and Brooklyn, when the summary showed:

	R.	H.	E.
Phillies	0	5	1
Brooklyn	1	3	2

Moore and Rucker were the opposing pitchers. The Phillies outplayed Brooklyn both in the field and at bat, and yet Moore was charged with a defeat. Moore that day pitched one of the greatest games of the season, and for seven innings he retired his opponents in one, two, three order. It was the costliness of the Phillies' one error that resulted in the defeat.

In that game Moore held Brooklyn to three hits, one of which was a bunt, and the other two were infield scratches.

Under the rule outlined five points would be charged against Moore as follows: One base on balls, three hits, and one sacrifice fly. On the other hand, seven points would be charged against Rucker as follows: Five hits and two bases on balls.

Each man pitched for nine full innings, or twenty-seven putouts. Under the rule proposed Moore's record would be 27 putouts and 5 points against, a total of 32, which divided into the total number of putouts, 27, would give Moore a percentage for that game of .844.

Rucker's record would be 27 putouts and 7 points against, a total of 34, giving him a percentage of .794.

In this way, instead of Moore having a defeat charged against him, when it was clearly not his fault, he would have the satisfaction of seeing in the score the fact that he outpitched Rucker and in the record for the season he would be given full credit for his work exclusively, instead of being charged with a defeat owing to an error made by a teammate. The error, by the way, was made on a sacrifice fly to right field by Hummel, the throw in getting away from Dooin.

Hits for Extra Bases.

It might be argued that a sacrifice fly should not be counted as a point scored against the pitcher. It should be, since a sacrifice fly can be given only when a base is scored on the drive, and it is the pitcher's object to prevent the batsman from knocking out a long fly.

Again, it is a question whether one point should be scored against the pitcher for each base hit, or the rule should read "for each base made on a hit by a batsman." In the latter case a pitcher would be charged with one point for a single, two points for a double, three points for a triple and four points for a home run.

In either case this point of the proposed rule is open to argument, although in neither case would it alter the general plan of the rule. Whichever method might be adopted would be as fair for one pitcher as the other.

The proposed rule, I think, would also be quickly understood and remembered by the fans, who, in a couple of minutes after a game is over, could figure out the percentages of the pitchers. The method of computation is by no means complicated, and the plan is based on the rule for figuring a team's percentage by dividing the total number of games won and lost into the number of games won.

THE LATEST ADDITION TO MY DOPE library is [illegible] bound book entitled "[illegible] Boxing Records to November, 1909," and one of the striking [illegible] is a halftone picture of [illegible] on the cover. England is only a few hundred years behind the United States in the matter of turning out good boxers, but they can give us cards and spades on boxing clubs, and the sport as sport stands head and shoulders higher than it does here. It would be hard to imagine a man in a corresponding position in this country allowing his picture to be printed as the frontispiece to a record of [illegible]. Mirandy on Divorce

"De rich got de price of divorsch and de pore ain't got hit on' dat's de reason dey gets 'em and takes a new wife when der old one is taken away secretely in three minutes"

By Dorothy Dix

"D[illegible] Sis Mirandy, [illegible] Jenkins sho'ly did preach a [illegible] discourse on de subject of d[illegible] [illegible] along wid deir fast automobiles, an' odder big [illegible] deir se'fs.

"Y[illegible] know when I ever see him [illegible] pounded de [illegible] [illegible] 'bout dem quick action divorses [illegible] slidin' down de broad way [illegible] an destruction, was enough to raise de very hair on yo' head, lessen you was bald as dey tell me dat some of dem ole sinners is.

"Goin' on home, Sis Hannah Jane was walkin wid me, an' she fetch a groan, an' says:

"'Sis Mirandy,' says she, 'dem was de true words, wid de bark on 'em, dat Brer Jenkins give us to-night.'

"'A[illegible]'

"'Hit's [illegible] outrage an' a scandal [illegible] what's got money can git a secret divorsch whar everythin' is hushed up,' [illegible] on.

"Cheatin Us Outen Our Rights."

"[illegible] 'hit ain't nothin' [illegible] balance of us out of our [illegible] out what hit was [illegible] an' what he did, an' she did, and de odder pusson one, an' whedder de affinity was one of deir friends' husbands or wives, or longed to de chorus, an' had a yellow pompadour an' a straight front daget, an' strings of pearls an' diamonds.

"'I tell you, Sis Hannah Jane,' I goes on, gittin' madder an' madder as I wuk myself up over de injustice dat had been done to de people, 'I'se wid you in de protestin' dat secret divorsches, beaze I don't know whar you will find any mo' interestin' readin' dan in one of dem divorsch cases in high life, an' goodness knows we po' folks has got few enough pleasures widout deprivin' us of de scandals of de Fo' Hundred.'

"Deprivin' de Po' of a Pleasure."

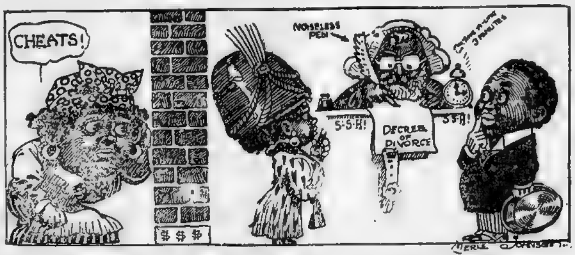
"'Dat's so,' spons Sis Hannah Jane, 'we folks lak us ain't got enough money to go to de theatre very often, but we don't need to when we can set down an' read in de paper about de divorsch suit if dem high flyers, whar all de servants was a keepin' diaries awrithin' down how many cocktails deir mistress drunk, an' what she called her husband when she flung him out de do'; or maybe about a young millionaire bein' let down in de dumb-waiter from his lady love's apartment; or [illegible] de po' [illegible] chillen what's got what [illegible] tryin' to remember which is deir new Pa an' Ma, an' which day of de week dey spends wid one parient, an' which wid de odder.'

"'Hit'll be a blow to us all,' sighs I, 'to be deprived of de familiar pleasure dat we has got used to of hearin' about de carryin' on of de rich, as we will be if dat secret divorsch business ain't stopped right now an' here, an' for dat reason I'se agwine to call a meetin' of the Daughters of Zion to protest aginst hit in de name of de women of de country who sho'ly would suffer a great an' grevious affliction ef dat subject of gossip was taken away from 'em.'

"'Sis Mirandy,' says Sis Hannah Jane wit deep feelin', 'I'll hold up yo fame in de good wuk, or hit would well nigh break up ev'ery sewin' circle an' Female Prayer Meetin' in de land.'

"'About all dat de millionaires is good for is to furnish us wid nice juicy scandals, dat has got mo' frills on 'em dan po' folks can afford,' says she firmly, 'an' ef deys goin' to hush all of deir doings up, dere ain't no reason why de balance of us should be taxed to support 'em.'

"'Sis Mirandy,' axes Sis Hannah Jane, 'what's de reason dat hit is easier for a camel to go through de eye of a needle, as de Good Book says, dan hit is for a rich pusson to stay married?'



"De secret divorsch keeps de pore from hearin' of de carryin's on of de rich"

Difference Between Rich and Poor

"'Sis Hannah Jane,' spons I, 'dey is got de price of divorsch an' us dat is po' ain't got hit, an' dat's de reason. Why does you an' me wear our ole frocks, when de color has faded out of 'em an' we'se got tired of 'em, an' we'se got so fat dat we'se done outgrowed 'em entel dey pulls an' strains at de seams, an' threatens to bust ev'ey time we make a move?

"'De answer is, we'se got to stick to de ole dress becaze we ain't got enough money to buy a new one. An dat's de way hit is wid divorsch amongst de po' an' de rich. Dere's jest as many po' men dat is tired of deir wives as dere is rich men, an' jest as many po' women dat feels lak flingin' de coffee pot at deir husbands' heads as dere is rich women, an' dere is jest as many po' men dat is castin' sheep's eyes at some gal dat is better lookin' and spryer dan deir wives as dere is rich men, an' dere is jest as many po' women what's found some man what looks lots better to 'em dan de rusty, bandy-legged man dat dey is married to.

"'But de difference betwixt dem is dat de po' man ain't got de money to pension off his ole wife an' buy a new one, an' de po' woman thinks about de rent collector comin' around de fust of de month an' dat she'd bettere stick to de man what's good for hit an' three squares meals a day, an' so dey goes along an' makes de best of a bad bargain an' keeps out of de divorsch court.

The Rich Can Afford It.

"'But de rich, dey can afford de luxury of swappin' partners when dey gits tired of de one dey's got, an' dey does, an' deir matrimonial mixup has been furnishin' entertainment for de balance of us outel dis heah onrighteous and secret divorsch business comes up.'

"'Sis Mirandy,' axes Sis Hannah Jane, 'how does you stand on de divorsch question, anyway?'

"'Sis Hannah Jane,' spons I, 'I'm on de fence, an' de side I gits down on depends on de way Ike treats me.'"

CHAPTER XIX.—(Continued)

COQUENIL, mystified by Alice's strange [illegible] and believing that there [illegible]thing mysterious about her, made arrangements to live at the Bon[illegible]tons and w[illegible] in the cathedral with the sacristan during the visit of the girl's cousin the wood carver. Coquenil assumed the name of Matthieu.

Coquenil then went to Brussels to inquire into the wood carver's career there.

On Tuesday, July 14, the great French holiday, he returned to meet Tignol.

Their rendezvous was at noon, but two hours earlier Tignol took the train at the St. Lazare station. And with him came Caesar, [illegible] changed, unrecognizable Caesar! Poor dog! His beautiful, glossy coat of brown and white had been clipped to ridiculous shortness, and he crouched at the [illegible].

"[illegible] not [illegible] ders [illegible] will grow out again.

So [illegible] Avenue Henri Martin [illegible] the platform and [illegible] circ[illegible] and various [illegible] because Coq[illegible] not followed [illegible] that he was not [illegible] he wished to be absolutely certain.

Tignol was followed by a strange looking man and arranged to write a note which he was to send to Coquenil under Caesar's collar.

"'I am sending this by Caesar,' he wrote, 'because I am watched. The man following me is a bad looking brute, with a dirty gray beard and no mustache. He has a nervous trick of half shutting his eyes and jerking up the corners of his mouth, which shows the worst set of ugly yellow teeth I ever saw. I'd like to have one of them for a curiosity.'"

"W[illegible]?" asked the man suddenly, as if answering a question.

Tignol stared at him.

"Excuse [illegible]," sponded the other, "but I read [illegible] upside down."

"Oh!"

"You said you would like one of my teeth."

"I [illegible]," faltered Tignol.

"It's no tr[illegible]," [illegible] the stranger. "On the co[illegible] [illegible] his yellow teeth [illegible] and first finger he gave [illegible] "There!" he said [illegible] and he handed Tignol the [illegible].

They were [illegible] into the Auteuil station [illegible] extraordinary manoeuvre was [illegible].

"I'll be da[illegible]!" exclaimed Tignol.

"Is it [illegible] good as that?" asked the stranger [illegible] tone that made the old man jump.

Tignol leaned closer and then in a burst of admiration he cried: "Nom de dieu! It's Coquenil!"

CHAPTER XX.

The Memory of a Dog

"IT'S a composition of rubber," laughed Coquenil. "You slip it on over your own tooth. See?" and he put back [illegible].

"Extraordinary!" [illegible] Tignol. "Even now I hardly kn[illegible]."

They proceeded [illegible] Coquenil's room where he put on a rough suit and took off the yellow teeth. Then they got the dog.

"Ah Caesar, old fellow!" Coquenil cried fondly as the dog rushed to meet him with barks of joy. "It's good to have a friend like that! Where is the man who cares so much? Or the woman either—except one."

"There's one woman who seems to care a lot about this dog," remarked Tignol. "I mean the candle girl. Such a fuss as she made when I went to get him!"

M. Paul listened in surprise. "What did she do?"

"Do? She cried and carried on in a great way. She said something was going to happen to Caesar, she didn't want me to take him."

"Strange!" muttered the other.

"We'll never get to the bottom of this case," Coquenil muttered, "until we know the truth about that girl. Papa Tignol, I want you to go right back to Notre Dame and keep an eye on her. If she is afraid of something there's something to be afraid of, and she knows. Don't talk to her until something happens. Just hang about the church until I come. Remember, we spend the night there."

Tignol rubbed his hands, then asked: "Have you found out much?"

Coquenil's eyes twinkled. "You're dying to know what I've been doing these last five days, eh?"

"Let's see," began Coquenil as they entered a beautiful park. "I have five days to account for. Well, I spent two days in Paris and three in Brussels."

"Where the wood carver lives?"

"As it turned out, I didn't find him. I haven't seen him yet. He was away on a trip when I got to Brussels, away on this trip that will bring him to Paris to-morrow, so I missed him and—it's just as well I did."

"You got facts about him?"

"Yes, I got facts about him; not the kind of facts I expected to get either. I saw the place where he boards, this Adolph Groener; in fact, I stopped there and I talked to the woman who runs it, a sharp-eyed young widow with a smooth tongue; and I saw the place where he works; it's a wood carving shop, all right, and I talked to the men there, two big, strong fellows with jolly red faces and—well"—he hesitated.

"Well?"

The detective crossed his arms and faced the old man with a grim, searching look.

"Papa Tignol," he said impressively, "they all tell a simple, straight story. His name is Adolph Groener, he does live in Brussels, he makes his living at wood carving, and the widow who runs the confounded boarding house knows all about this girl Alice."

Tignol rubbed his nose reflectively. "It was a long shot anyway."

"What would you have done?" questioned the other sharply.

"Why," answered Tignol, slowly, while his shrewd eyes twinkled, "I'd have cussed a little and had a couple of drinks and—come back to Paris."

"It was a piece of stupid luck that saved me when I ought to have known, when I ought to have been sure. And, mark you, if I had come back believing in Groener's innocence, this crime would never have been cleared up, never."

Tignol shrugged his shoulders. "La, la! What a man! If you had fallen into a hole you might have broken your leg! Well you didn't fall into the hole!"

Coquenil smiled. "You're right, I ought to be pleased, I am pleased. After all, it was a neat bit of work. You see, I was waiting in the parlor of this boarding house for the widow to bring me my bill. I had spent two days there and I happened to glance at a photograph she had [illegible] when I first came—a picture of [illegible] herself taken five years ago [illegible] Alice was twelve years old. There was no doubt about the girl, and it was a good likeness of the widow. She told me she was a great friend of Alice's mother and the picture was taken when the mother died just before Alice went to Paris.

"Well, as I looked at the picture now I noticed that it had no photographer's name on it, which is unusual, and it seemed to me there was something queer about the girl's hand. I went to the window and [illegible] with my magni[illegible] [illegible] the woman's step [illegible] I slipped it into my pocket, [illegible] paid my bill and came away."

"[illegible] the picture," approved Tignol.

"As [illegible] I was outside I [illegible] photographers in Brussels [illegible] picture and [illegible] it would cost to [illegible] I [illegible] the question. I watched the man's face. The first two were perfectly businesslike, but the third man gave a little start and looked at me in an odd way. I made up my mind he had seen the picture before, but I didn't get anything out of him. In fact, I didn't try very hard for [illegible].

"From here I d[illegible] police headquarters and had a talk with the chief. He knew me by reputation, and a note that I brought from Pougeot helped and—well, an hour later that photographer was ready to tell me the innermost secrets of his soul."

"Eh, eh, eh!" laughed Tignol. "And what did he tell you?"

"He told me he made this picture of Alice and the widow only six weeks ago."

"Six weeks ago!" stared the other. "But the widow told you it was taken five years ago."

"Exactly!"

"Besides, Alice wasn't in Brussels six weeks ago, was she?"

"Of course not; the picture was a fake, made from a genuine one of Alice and her mother. This photographer had blotted out the mother and printed in the widow without changing the pose; it's a simple trick in photography."

"You saw the genuine picture?"

"Of course that is, I saw a reproduction of it, which the photographer made on his own account. He suspected some crooked work, and he didn't like the man who gave him the order."

"You mean the wood carver?"

Coquenil shrugged his shoulders. "Call him a wood carver, call him what you like. He didn't go to the photographer in his wood carver disguise. He went as a gentleman in a great hurry and willing to pay any price for the work."

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

The Girl on the Cover

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

SOMETIMES she wears a picture hat, adorned with purple cherries,
That match the scarlet cover of the parasol she carries
Sometimes she's clad in gingham of a simple color
And leans upon a haystack like our little friend, Maud Muller—
But whether in the gay salon, or at the football game,
The dimple just beneath her nose looks always just the same

Sometimes she simply rolls in wealth, and in a limousine
She makes the crowded avenue a truly brilliant scene;
Again she perches on the roof of some skyscraper tall,
And leans above the space below with half a mile to fall—
But whether in a subway car or on a mountain peak,
You'll know her by the dimple in the southwest of her cheek

She often stands upon the tee, a brassie in her hand,
In attitude that golfing folk can never understand;
Or skims along the new formed ice, her tippet flying free,
While handsome skating gentlemen dash madly in her lee—
But whether midst the pastures sweet, or in the city's din,
You'll recognize that dimple off to starboard of her chin

One day I met the maid herself upon a trolley car,
And murmured quite persuadingly, "Pray tell me who you are,
And why you have so many clothes, and go so many places,
And decorate your poses with so many different graces?"
Said she, "I'm only painted in these changing clothes and scenes, I'm the model for the covers of the latest magazines."

"Pity the Blind"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

I SAW a man bearing this placard: "Pity the Blind!" His eyes were wholly sightless, and my heart was stirred with pity.

Then I fell to thinking of the scores, hundreds and thousands of people in this world who do not carry this printed placard and whose eyes are not closed to the beauties of this world, yet who are nevertheless walking in Egyptian darkness through life.

There are people who think this world is all there is of existence and who hurry through it trying to grab and grasp every material bit of wealth they see, no matter whether it belongs to them or not.

They lie awake nights, thinking up schemes by which they can get the better of others; and to outshine their neighbors is the leading motive of their lives.

A larger house, more furniture, more expensive entertainments than their associates, that is their ambition. It is not the comforts of a home, the beauty or convenience of its furniture, the joy of hospitality, which attracts them, but the desire to outdo and to outshine others.

These Are Blind; Pity Them

Pity the blind!

Again, there are the revengeful souls. "To get even" with any one who has wronged, slighted or insulted them is the predominating impulse in their natures. These people tell you with pride that they are "strong in their loves and hates" and that they never forget a kindness or an injury" and that they are "faithful to friends and bitter to enemies."

Yet I have never seen a nature of this kind which was capable of great, unselfish love, or broad, noble friendship. They are almost invariably jealous, exacting, hysterical, selfish and unreasonable in their loves and friendships.

There was never a more mistaken idea than that a nature which loves intensely always hates with equal intensity.

Christ was all love—where was his hatred?

The person who is capable of the most exalted love and whose temperament is ardent and affectionate, is a poor hater. He has no time to waste on hatred or revenge. He dislikes certain people and he lets them alone—avoids them when it is possible to do so.

It is the man whose loves and friendships the all tinctured with selfish impulses, and who never forgets his own interests and pleasures in forming such ties, who allows himself to brood over thoughts of revenge when his self-love is wounded or his interests are jeopardized.

He Who Plans Revenge

He does not know that every revengeful thought which he gives lodgment in his mind will send for evil influences which shall rebound upon himself, and that every time he plans an injury toward his enemy he is planning ten against his own happiness and prosperity, for evil thoughts propagate as rapidly as insects.

Pity the blind!

Then there are the people who rely upon doctors, clergymen or clairvoyants to give them health, hope and insight. Doctors are necessary in the world; clergymen are helpful advisers ofttimes, and clairvoyants are interesting sometimes as a scientific study.

The real health of the body, real hope, real inspiration must come from a study of our own minds and spirits and from putting our every-day visible selves on good terms with our invisible and real selves!

Only when we cast out evil thoughts, selfish impulses, gloomy and despondent views of life and replace them with a belief in the divine nature which dominates us and which rules our bodies, our minds, our external circumstances and everything concerning us—only then can we obtain permanent health, abounding hope and absolute success.

So many people are looking for others to give them health, happiness and prosperity, and ignore the fact that their own forceful, devout and determined thoughts can give them whatever they want.

Pity the blind!

I know several physically blind men and women whose souls are full of light, whose hearts are full of love for God and man, and who walk through the world attended by invisible guides. They do not need my pity, as do those who, having eyes, see not, and, having ears, hear not.

Pity the blind!

What Do You Think of This?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

IF this unfortunate poodle could see himself in the looking glass his honest doggy heart would break with humiliation.

Nature gave him a delicate skin and provided a heavy coat to keep him warm. A foolish woman turns him into a shivering creature. The time, money and affection lavished on him would make many a little neglected baby happy and comfortable.

I called on a woman friend the other day. She was knitting a tiny garment which perplexed me greatly. I could make neither head nor tail of it.

"Do you mind telling me just what that is supposed to be?" I asked.

Sweaters for Her Dog.

"I don't wonder you ask," she laughed. "It is a sweater for Fugi, he does feel the cold so much, the darling, so I am making him several of these warm little sweaters, a pink one, a blue one and a scarlet one."

"Do you mean to tell me that you are doing all this for a dog?" I gasped.

"Why not, I have no children to work for, and I am devoted to Fugi."

And there was Fugi, a little pampered, over-fed dog, wrapped in warm, soft garments and this cruel Winter at hand and hundreds of babies half fed and half-clad. The cruelty of it, the heart-breaking cruelty.

The fact that she has no children of her own is no excuse for a woman wasting money and attention on a dog.

Motherhood is not individual; it is universal. A true woman's heart goes out to all children, other women's as well as her own.

I love dogs; they are good, honest friends, not to be despised but they have their place.

I feel ten times more interest in and respect for the "little mother" of the East Side who carries her baby brother or sister in her arms than I do for the young woman of Fifth avenue who carries a dog cuddled in her arms.

A dog is as out of place in a satin-lined basket as a baby is on a stone pavement.

For the money that is spent on many a dog, a baby could be fed and clothed for a year.

It is not only the bodily comforts which the dear babies miss; their hearts are as starved as their piteous little bodies.

More Money and Care Wasted on a Dog Like This Than Would Keep Some Child Alive.

Winter is at the door. Milk has gone up to ten cents a quart, and the babies will be the ones to suffer.

Help them in any way you can. Deny yourself some little luxury and give the money to some one who will spend it wisely for the babies.

When you see a woman dragging a caricature of a dog after her, you may pity rather than ridicule her.

If a woman has so little heart that it can be filled by the love of a dog, she is an object of pity.

As for the dog—well, he would much prefer a mutton bone to the grandest feast and the finest clothes in the world.

A FAT WOMAN HATES SOCIETY

Fat people have to get into clothes that are designed for people of normal physique. The men wear dress suits and look like comic pictures. The women wear low necked dresses to their evident humiliation. This is why it is often said that a fat woman hates society. Fat is as much the mistake of poor health as anything else. The things that make fat should be making good blood, bone and nerves. The secret is that the digestive machinery is out of gear. The juices make fat in too large quantities. This fat impedes circulation, cramps the heart, suppresses the liver, crowds the lungs and interferes with the stomach. Marmola Tablets are harmless. They are taken after each meal. They help digest that meal as nature intended it should be digested. They remove the fat already made at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day and they leave no flabby skin or wrinkles. They are sold wherever drugs are sold, or [illegible] the same category with [illegible] patent fat reducers. They contain Marmola, Cascara Aromatic and Peppermint water. If you do not care to [illegible] your druggist send 75c to the Marmola Company, Dept. 150, De[illegible] [illegible]

That Bath-Room of Yours

Bath tubs, bowls, kitchen utensils, etc., are enameled so that their smooth surfaces may be easily kept clean. Scouring bricks and gritty powders ruin the polish of the enamel, making it rough and hard to clean.

Use Gold Dust for cleaning all sorts of enameled and painted surfaces.

Gold Dust simply releases dirt, allowing it to wash away easily by rinsing.

THE LATEST STYLES IN KNITTING AND CROCHETING

Square Shawls Are Again in Fashion

To one who observed the well-dressed women at the fashionable resorts last summer there can be no doubt about the return of the square shawl. Here is a design marked by rich simplicity, its only ornament being the beautiful open-work border.

It requires thirteen skeins of Fleisher's Shetland Floss—the favorite yarn for evening wear—light, fluffy, warm. The use of Fleisher's Shetland Floss removes the only objection to the square shawl—sagging and pulling out of shape. The elasticity of Fleisher's positively prevents this, and insures a garment that will drape properly and retain its freshness under every reasonable condition.

STRAIGHT through my heart this fact to-day
By Truth's own hand is driven;
God never takes one thing away,
But something else is given.

I did not know in earlier years
This law of love and kindness;
I only mourned through bitter tears
My loss in sorrow's blindness.

But ever following each regret
O'er some departed treasure,
My sad repining heart was met
With unexpected pleasure.

I thought it only happened so,
But Time this truth has taught me—
No least thing from my life can go,
But something else is brought me.

It is the Law, complete, sublime;
And now with Faith unshaken,
In patience I but bide my time
When any joy is taken.

No matter if the crushing blow
May for the moment down me,
Still, back of it waits Love, I know,
With some new gift to crown me.

Playhouse Notes

Lillian Russell's engagement in "The Widow's Might" at the Hollis Street Theatre is continuing one of the most prosperous that she has ever played at this house.

Elsie Janis and her imitations of celebrities of the stage are as astonishing as ever at the Colonial Theatre, and everybody who sees "The Fair Co Ed" wonders how it is possible for her to catch the mannerisms of George Cohan, Anna Held and the rest to such perfection.

There are only a few more opportunities for seeing "The Love Cure" at the Tremont Theatre, and then Henry W. Savage's company, headed by Lina Abarbanell and Charles J. Ross, will leave New England and appear nowhere nearer than Philadelphia.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" is emphatically a man's play, for the plot as manifested at the Park Theatre is one of the national interests and shows how the forces of the lobby can get in their work at Washington. Thomas A. Wise and Douglas Fairbanks are the chief magnets in the cast.

The "Three Twins" at the Boston is still drawing great crowds and there is only regret that it is nearing the end of its run.

"The City" at the Globe is taking a strong hold on the Boston public and bids far to become one of the biggest hits that has struck Boston for a long time.

Chevalier at Keith's is getting them in great style with his funny coster songs and the other numbers on the bill are hits.

"Let's go to the American Music Hall and get hypnotized" is frequently heard on the street now. Pauline is putting them to sleep at every performance.

"Kit, the Arkansas Traveller" at the Bowdoin Square is an old time melodrama but is ever popular.

It is holiday week at the burlesque houses, Gaiety, Howard and Columbia. There are good shows at each house and big audiences.

"The Creole Slave's Revenge" is still thrilling them at the Grand Opera House.

That a Charles Hoyt play is always popular in Boston is evidenced by the crowds that are seeing and laughing at "A Contented Woman" at the Castle Square this week.

The new bill at the Hub Theatre for the last three days of this week presents the Powers Trio, in a comedy sketch "Izzy's Dream," and George W. Hussey & Co.

Rondeau

By KENNETT HARRIS

SHE was a dream of perfect loveliness,
A treasure it were rapture to possess;
Her voice was music to the ear,
Its accents soft and low, yet fine and clear,
A voice meet such a being to express.

She was a benediction, a caress;
The sight of her was ecstasy, no less.
Handsome? You are not heeding me, I fear.
She was a dream!

She cooked; the art she scorned not to profess.
And she could make a most becoming dress
From nothing almost. And so kind, so dear
Was she always. Excuse this falling tear.
Dead? No, she never lived. You ought to guess
She was a dream!

A THRILLING MYSTERY
By CHARLES E. WALK

Copyright, 1909, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

SYNOPSIS.

Dorothy Day, the belle of Williamsburg, disappears in a mysterious manner from the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, where the guests are assembled to see her become the wife of Lecomte Gibbs, the head of the Steel Trust.

The cause of her disappearance was a message whispered in her ear by a roughly dressed stranger, who thrust a golden bracelet or ring into her hand when he delivered the message.

Flint, a plainclothes man from Police Headquarters, is detailed on the case, and after hearing the story of the disappearance from Gibbs, Miss Edith Gervaise, who was to act as the maid of honor, and Foster Cole, the best man, tells the police sergeant that Dorothy Day has skipped off with another man.

Gibbs and Cole go to the home Gibbs had prepared for his bride, and there Cole asks him questions about Dorothy, who had come to Williamsburg from California four years before. Gibbs knows little about the girl's early history, and as he has about finished telling the little he knows he sees a brass reliquary on the table in his den, where the two men are sitting that belongs to Dorothy and which was in her home that afternoon.

On picking up the reliquary, Gibbs finds a note warning him and his friends not to try to find Dorothy, who will be returned unharmed the following Wednesday, that is if no search is made for her, but if a search is made the girl will have to answer for it.

Gibbs and Cole are trying to find how the reliquary came into Gibbs's home when to-day's instalment opens.

CHAPTER IV.

Cullimore.

IN the brass reliquary and its contents Cole was first to appreciate the fact that he and his friend were confronted by a problem at once concrete and direct in the brevity of the first question it aroused in the minds of both; namely, how came an article of bric-a-brac belonging to a cabinet in Miss Day's drawing-room to be on the desk in Lecomte Gibbs' den?

The secondary questions which followed as a matter of course—those concerning the motives governing whoever was responsible for the transfer, the significance of the gilt band and the motive which inspired the typewritten warning—did not at once suggest themselves; the first was astounding enough, whether it meant a practical joke whose object was not yet apparent, or hid a meaning deadly serious in its import.

The thought of a joke, however, was not to be entertained for a moment; the gilt band, connecting the incident as it did directly with Miss Day's disappearance, provoked the most apprehensive feelings of dread and anxiety; and as soon as the two men recovered somewhat from their amazement, they at once set about seeking an explanation.

"Singularly enough," said Gibbs, "I can positively assert that the reliquary was in Dorothy's cabinet as late as 2 o'clock this afternoon; or, to be exact, yesterday afternoon. I was then at her home, and for a minute or two we paused before the cabinet, while she pointed to a number of articles which she intended bringing to this house after the wedding. The few indicated were all presents from me, and this was among them.

"Wait a moment"—as he began recalling details of the incident—"she opened the cabinet and took the reliquary in her hand, expressing her delight over its oddity and speculating on its probable value as a rare bit of virtu." Of a sudden the speaker started and paused, a look of surprised bewilderment overspreading his face.

"By Jove, Foster!" he went on in a moment, "I remember now, although the circumstance did not strike me at the time; while she was holding the reliquary and talking—talking happily, too, I'll swear—why, all at once—quite abruptly, I mean—she became silent and her expression changed. She gave me a peculiar look and hurriedly put the brass box back into its place. Then she locked the glass door of the cabinet and drew me away from its vicinty. And, my dear fellow, I think—indeed, I am quite sure of it—that for some time—perhaps until we parted—she was not so animated, her spirits were less gay than they had been a few moments before."

"I confess I'm stumped," Cole gravely observed. "One thing I am certain of, however: the little saint could not have come here without assistance. Suppose you rout out the servants."

"So I will"—immediately suiting the action to the word by bearing down heavily upon the button near the door—"every last one of them."

The butler responded promptly to the prolonged summons, heavy-eyed for sleep, but not permitting the slightest relaxation of his dignity for so common a cause.

The master of the house curtly imparted his instructions.

"And, Cullimore, was his final word, "give them to understand they have no time to primp; I want them at once."

Cullimore was a model butler; for, notwithstanding the lateness of the hour and the consequent irregularity of such a demand, he departed on his extraordinary errand with the same air, at once deferential and imposingly dignified, with which he would have gone to fetch a brandy and soda.

Cole Suspects the Butler

Foster Cole, however, observed one circumstances which roused his curiosity; as Cullimore opened the door, the man's glance at once sought the wide-topped desk—a look that struck Cole as being both furtive and, in a way, apprehensive. Was the fellow looking for the reliquary?—perhaps to ascertain whether it had been disturbed? And if so, what was his interest in the thing?

At any rate, Cole continued to eye him keenly, but could discern nothing behind the fellow's smug dignity. He had never before been suspicious of Cullimore; indeed, he had often congratulated his friend on the possesion of such an excellent major-domo; but now he was suspicious of every member of the household.

What meant that sly, surreptitious glance bent upon the writing table? Anyhow, to use a phrase of the streets, "it was up to" the servants to account for the presence of the reliquary and its mysterious contents.

As the door closed behind the butler Cole turned to his friend.

"I say," said he, "while you quiz the rest of the servants here, let me have Cullimore alone in another room—before he learns what you are after."

"For goodness' sake, you don't suspect him."

The young fellow's shoulders rose in one of his expressive shruggs; it was clear that he was becoming terribly bored.

"I would pin my faith in no mortal in opposition to an appeal just powerful enough to sway his self-interest," was the cynical reply. "But I am no more suspicious of Cullimore than I am of the remainder of your menage; he's simply the brains of the outfit—though I fancy he is at some pains to conceal that fact—and I object to angling for suggestions in a suggestionless mental pond. Pitch into your dull-witted retinue to your heart's content but Cullimore I have marked as my legitimate prey."

"Oh, very well. I presume you have an object; fire away."

"Indeed, my dear fellow"—Mr. Cole stifled a yawn—"all my undertakings are not purposeless. Any servant keen enough to play a game like the one we are up against to-night will have no particular difficulty in dodging the thunders of your wrath. But here come the barbarian horde."

Cole intercepted the butler in the hall. Behind that worthy came a troop of menials, from the prime housekeeper on down to grooms and gaping stable boys, all more or less dishevelled, and all apparently stupid with wonder and the sleep that still befogged their brains.

"Cullimore, you and I are not wanted in there," said Cole.

"Very well, sir," returned Cullimore, betraying not the faintest flicker of curiosity at such ill-timed, such incomprehensible, proceedings. "Shall I light the library, sir?"

"Yes, do."

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

SYMBOLISM.

"ALONE I stand and gaze
Out at the dim gray dawn;
I see unnumbered days
Across the circle drawn."
'Twas thus a poet mused,
And furthermore he said:
"The palm has been refused,
The sword is dripping red;
I hear the chariot wheels,
The wild bird's piercing cry;
Before my vision reels
A comet through the sky;
The sea is dark with gore,
The wind moans in the vale;
The serpent on the shore
Has left a slimy trail;
The warrior in his tent
Is calmly sleeping late!"
I knew not what it meant;
A critic called it great.

WORTH IT

A man recently was tried on a charge of assault. The prosecuting counsel brought into court as the weapons used a stick, an axe, a pair of tongs, a saw and a rifle. The defendant's counsel exhibited, as the other man's weapons, a scythe blade, a pitchfork, a pistol and a hoe.

The jury's verdict is said to have been: "Resolved, that we, the jury, would have given $2 to have seen the fight."

The luncheon was arranged to follow the meet at Bullard's Corner in Holliston earlier in the day. A similar affair was given at the Myopia Hunt Club for its members.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton of this city are in Staatsburg, N. Y., and are the guests of the Gerald Livingstone Hoyts.

Invitations have been received here by friends and relatives of Dr. and Mrs. Gorham Bacon (Elizabeth Simpkins) for the reception which is to be given to-morrow at the Colony Club in New York in honor of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Bacon, who is one of the debutantes of the season.

The young girl is the niece of Mrs. Bayard Thayer of Boston and Lancaster and of Mrs. George Agassiz, formerly of Boston, but more recently of Santa Barbara, California.

Miss Bacon is a niece of Nathaniel Simpkins and a cousin of Miss Faith Simpkins, who are both well known here. Miss Bacon is a sister of Mrs. Austin Cheney of South Manchester, Connecticut, and of Mrs. Richard M. H. Harper of Boston.

* * *

Mrs. William Lothrop Allen and Mrs. Arthur B. Denny of Chestnut Hill are to entertain at dinner on Saturday evening and after dinner they are to take their guests to the Chestnut Hill Club where a dance will be given.

CUTICURA CURED TWO BROTHERS

One had Face Covered with Itching Eruption—Eyesight was Affected—Raw, Itching Humor Spread Over the Other from Head to Feet in a Single Day—Dreadful

SKIN-TORTURES YIELD TO EASY TREATMENT

"In 1907 my face broke out in a mass of itching sores which finally affected my eyesight. I tried several highly recommended salves that cost one dollar an ounce, but to no avail. A friend of mine urged me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment as he was sure of good results from his own experience. I used the Cuticura Ointment for about six weeks, after washing thoroughly with the Cuticura Soap. My face is in perfect health now which I owe to the Cuticura Remedies. I shall always stand by them as one of the greatest blessings to the suffering thousands. Arthur D. Gridley, 532 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Apr. 9, 1909."

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had got to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 E. 43rd St., New York City, Apr. 27, '09."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

LOCAL PRICES ARE IRREGULAR

STATE STREET, Nov. 26.—Little interest was taken in copper shares this forenoon, and the market was a sort of an after-holiday one. There were a few active stocks, but prices were somewhat irregular. Nothing new is heard of the copper merger, but copper warrants in London stiffened over the holiday.

Boston Consolidated and Lake Copper were the market features during the early day. The former touched 22⅛, but sagged to 21½, while Lake broke a point to 49 with partial recovery. Utah Copper varied from above 63 to 62. There is yet quite a discrepancy in the market values of the latter and Boston Consolidated providing the trade of 2½ shares of Boston Consolidated for one of Utah Copper goes through.

Parrot and Butte Coalition were strong spots, but lost part of their early buoyancy. The former stiffened to 31 and the latter 31⅝. A weak feature was Daly-West, with a point break to 8. North Butte was fairly steady at from 65 to 64¾. There was no pronounced pressure either way.

Curb trading was light and prices were somewhat irregular. La Rose sold off fractionally on selling pressure.

STRENGTH IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Stocks were strong in Wall street to-day and gains of from one to two points were made in the early trading. Copper shares were the most active, with Utah the leader. Amalgamated had a very active opening and advanced over a point. Anaconda and Smelters also rose a point.

Substantial gains were made by Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Rock Island. There was also a better demand for New York Central, and liquidation of the issue because of the new stock seemed to have ceased for the time being. It rose about half a point, but when the market reacted later it lost all of its advance. Local traction shares were fractionally higher. American shares were higher in London.

On the New York curb market copper stocks were the leaders with fractional gains. La Rose was heavy.

A NEW MASSAGE—Mme. Cavalieri will explain it in detail in the Sunday American.

WOMEN HIBERNIANS MANAGE BAZAAR

A bazaar in aid of the sick and death benefit fund of the Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 36, A. O. H., will open to-night in Hibernian Hall, Havre street, East Boston, to which have been invited the head officers of both branches of the order. President Miss Mary E. F. Digan will deliver the opening address. The bazaar which will close to-morrow night at 10 o'clock, is the culmination of several months of active work on the part of the members of the branch. Unique features and novelties of different description, together with an entertainment of music, and enliven the the occasion.

WIFE SAVES HUSBAND NEAR DEATH BY GAS

Prompt action by Mrs. George Waring of No. 27 Medford street, Malden, saved her husband from being asphyxiated. After undressing in his room, Mr. Waring did not turn off the gas. He became unconscious and was found by his wife lying on the floor. She called neighbors and Frank Wall and John Curley responded. They worked over the victim for thirty minutes, finally reviving him.

CUPID IN CHICAGO GOES ON RAMPAGE

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Cupid went on a Thanksgiving rampage in Chicago. Conservative estimate places the number of persons who fell victim to his darts during the day at more than 1,100. Pastors say they were on the run all day performing marriage ceremonies. The Rev. R. Keene Ryan, according to reports, married twelve couple. Other pastors were similarly busy.

BRITISH SHIP GIVEN UP AFTER A SEARCH

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The British ship Clan MacPherson was to-day given up as lost, and the risk on her was withdrawn in the insurance market. This followed the report of H. M. S. Challenger, which searched the South Pacific, but failed to find any trace of the Clan MacPherson or those who were aboard her. The MacPherson, which was long overdue, sailed from Newcastle, N. S. W., for Valparaiso.

NEWEST CURES WITHOUT DRUGS—Read this feature in the Sunday American and save money, health and prevent suffering.

NEGRO SEIZED BY MOB PUT TO DEATH

MERIDIAN, Miss., Nov. 26.—A mob of 200 masked men early to-day took Morgan Chambers, a negro, from the officers who had him in custody and shot him to death. The officers were overpowered. Practically every man in the crowd fired into the negro's body. Chambers beat and robbed Martin Dressler, an old man at Point, near Meehan.

ASTOR, SON AND PARTY ALL SAFE AND WELL

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 26.—The American steam yacht Nourmahal, with Colonel John Jacob Astor of New York and party on board, is still in the harbor here. Colonel Astor, his son Vincent and their guests all are well.

Tickets are sold to all points on its route as well as the Intercolonial, and Halifax & Southwestern railways. Tickets will be placed on sale for sailings on December 21 and December 24.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Though bulls are hopeful, the market promises to be ragged for some time to come.

General attention is still riveted on the Standard Oil decision.

The state of the financial mind is reflected in the lack of stability in prices.

The liquidation in the market as a whole had probably about run its course for the time being, and the demand coming from the shorts sufficed to keep prices of the majority of stocks comparatively firm.

The decision of the Circuit Court in the Standard Oil case has influenced very little liquidation of Standard Oil shares. At the offices of the Standard Oil Company it was said that the attorneys of the company were perfecting their appeal to the Supreme Court, and that there was nothing further to say regarding the case.

Now that some days have passed since the shock of the Standard Oil decision State street again has turned to the consideration of the agreement which is to result in the appreciation of the price of the copper metal. It wants to see the latter at sixteen cents or so.

Private advices, of both a domestic and a foreign nature, state definitely that there is further improvement in the copper metal situation, which is, practically speaking, of much more importance than the merger now proposed.

State street has brought itself to the belief that about the only thing necessary to a real boom in the stock market is a readjustment of the copper situation. It may be disappointed, but if it is there is no doubt it will fasten its attention upon another feature.

Increased railroad earnings, big bank clearings, added dividends, mergers, combinations and takings-over (like that of Western Union by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company), booms in trade and manufacture and such items of prosperity are old stories now. State street wants some thing new, and thinks it has it in the arrangement that is to enhance the price of copper metal.

Foreign holders of copper, equally with those at home, are anxious to have something done. If some satisfactory conclusion is reached the metal situation, generally speaking, will be on a par with the improvement in other lines of trade and therefore no longer a drag on the contemplated bull movement.

It certainly is copper's turn to assert itself. It has been in the background for two years now, and its delay in coming to the front has been the cause of a great deal of dissatisfaction. Maybe a vital change is pending.

New York Central is distinctly heavy. The Street is beginning to doubt whether the dividend will be increased for some time to come, and there appears to be an old speculative account in the stock put out some time ago in anticipation of a merger with other large companies, the consummation of which is now regarded as very remote, indeed.

Considering the decline in the stock of the other great trunk line, Pennsylvania acts well, and it is pointed out in conservative quarters that there was no reason why Central should sell within two points of Pennsylvania, as it has been doing for some time, the dividend on Pennsylvania being as likely to be raised from 6 per cent. to 7 per cent. within the next few months as that on New York Central is to be raised from 5 per cent. to 6 per cent. within the same period of time.

It is pointed out as another indication of the extent to which the market has discounted developments that the increase of the Mackay dividend was without effect on the stock.

The United States Steel Corporation will close one of the most successful months in its history. The net earnings for Novembe will run in the neighborhood of $14,000,000, compared with close to $14,750,000 in October. There is generally a falling off in earnings in November as compared with October, due to heavier ore shipments in the latter month and the greater number of business days. If earnings in December reach $13,000,000, then the net for the entire quarter will be close to $42,000,000.

The earnings of the Steel Corporation in the current quarter will be sufficient to warrant the statement that here will be further appropriations for new construction.

The feature of the report for the current quarter will be the unfilled tonnage on hand. In the third quarter there was an increase of approximately 700,000 tons, which was regarded by many as disappointing. The current quarter's showing should show an increase of close to 1,500,000 tons, as orders in October and November established new high records.

"A Nice Little Kitten That Can Purr---and Scratch"

Do Not Imagine, Young Women, That Men Really Want That Type of Creatures for Wives

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Writing to a newspaper, a young woman, who says she has brains, darkly prophesies a future for herself as an old maid.

"I am liked, even loved," she says, "till my brains become evident. What my lovers want is a nice little kitten that can purr—yes, and scatch, now and then, just to make life interesting."

So this young woman, BECAUSE SHE HAS BRAINS, believes that she will be compelled to go through life unprotected and alone, while other purring and docile creatures, with sharp claws hidden beneath velvet paws, obtain a monopoly of wedded happiness.

In supplying comfort and encouragement to this pessimistic young person we also address all capable and intelligent maidens who fear that their brains are a bar to the admiration that a woman has a right to expect from men.

Any girl who thinks a young man will be driven away from her merely because she has brains makes a serious mistake.

It is perfectly true that most men prefer to think themselves the intellectual superiors of their wives, but no girl who really has brains ever permits her lover to find out just how clever she is.

Instead, she apparently looks up to him, admires his broad shoulders and firm, square chin, and makes him her husband without his ever suspecting that he has had no choice in the matter whatever.

Such a woman, after she becomes a wife, continues to direct her husband's activities—his thoughts, opinions and career. And all the while he imagines that it is HIS brain that is driving him along toward success—his resistless will that is giving him mastery over other men.

Could you question any one of a half dozen important men in this country, they would tell you how, unaided and alone, they had overcome opposition, swept away enemies, and won fame and fortune for themselves and their wives.

But their wives know better. Proud of their husbands, and loving them devotedly, they yet understand just how much quiet encouragement it has taken to keep them on the road to success.

In Africa, where Mr. Roosevelt is now shooting zebras, the natives train lithe, powerful leopards, called cheetahs, to go out and bring game in to them.

The cheetah no doubt fancies that it is his skill and prowess that makes him a successful hunter, never suspecting that his master looses him just at the right time to make his booty sure, meanwhile carefully protecting him from all larger beasts of prey.

A clever wife manages her husband in much the same way. She PLANS the conquests, and sends him out to MAKE them.

Naturally, she never allows him to suspect that he is not entitled to all the credit.

And even when he insists on his superiority, sneers at her because she is merely a woman, and does all he can to make her feel her dependence, she still encourages him; for she knows that his vanity is dear to him, and that he must not be robbed of it.

The cuddly, purring kitten of a girl can only attract admirers by her prettiness. In a competition for a husband with a young woman of brains she stands a very poor chance.

For men DO NOT prefer the kitten kind to the woman with brains.

They may THINK that they do. You will often hear them boasting that they prefer to do the thinking for the family and let their wives do the cooking, and that they will show the world who is master in their houses.

But, all the same, they fall easy victims to the girl WHO HAS THE BRAINS TO CONCEAL HER BRAINS; for no man ever really escaped a clever woman who was determined to marry him.

There is no reason for the young woman who unburdens herself in newspaper letters to feel that the future holds nothing for her.

If she really wants to marry, she can find a more satisfactory husband than her kittenish sisters.

It is natural for all women to want to be pretty; but, pretty or not, they can all get good husbands. And on their own efforts as wives will largely depend the success or failure of the men they marry.

"The AMERICAN has the evening 'home' field in Boston exclusively."—Advertisers' Magazine.

De Armond's Great Service

The Democratic party in this generation has produced few abler and cleaner men than David A. De Armond. His loss will be keenly felt by his party, by the Congress of which he was an established and distinguished ornament and by the great State which he so long and so ably represented.

The fact that David A. De Armond did not occupy higher and more distinguished official position in the ranks of his party is rather a reflection upon the judgment and appreciation of the organization than upon the merits and services of the statesman. He was better than his party.

Mr. De Armond was an orator in the best sense of the word, because his speech had that indispensable requisite of eloquence in that it conveyed the impression of his own sincere belief in his advocacies, and carried conviction to those who heard him.

He was, in point of fact, the ablest statesman in his party. He was nearly always, if not always, right. At least, he was oftener right than his party when it differed with him. All that was best and wisest in Democracy listened to him, and the real element in his party followed him, because he above his fellows represented the Democracy which was in the heart of Jefferson and in the heart of Lincoln.

The honest and progressive element of the Democratic organization has sustained a mighty loss.

The American cherished always for the distinguished Missourian a sentiment of the highest confidence and regard, to which was joined a genuine affection for the loyalty and ability of the noble and accomplished gentleman.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE

RIDING A HOBBY

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

EVERY man and woman should have a vocation and an avocation. [illegible] vocation is the thing you depend upon for your bread and butter and clothes and house rent.

Your avocation is your plaything, your rest, your recreation, your emergency brake, your psychic governor, your spark arrester, your safety fuse that takes care of you when there is danger of a short circuit in your cerebrum.

Your avocation brings into play another set of mental muscles and gives you fit preparation for the battle of life. It supplies the resiliency or resisting power, lends endurance, courage, faith and self-reliance.

The farmers' wives who go insane are suffering for lack of a fad, a hobby, a playspell.

The business men who slip their trolleys, and the specialists who go bug, wouldn't if they had a hobby and gallop it hard and fast an hour a day.

If your work is indoors get a hobby that takes you out. If your work is head work get a fad that makes you use your hands and feet. If nothing better, be a fight fan or a baseball fiend. These things will inspire you to get a medicine ball and use it; or an indoor baseball and pull the household, including your wife, the children, grandpa and the hired girl into the game.

When Edmund Burke was in his early twenties he experienced a great flaring up of intellect, tapping a big reservoir of power.

And when the mood was on he utilized the cosmic current, instead of grounding it, and wrote an immortal book.

This book is known to us as "Burke on the Sublime."

The joker here gets his chance and comes in with "the sublime and ridiculous."

And there is no doubt that people who reach the sublime often appear ridiculous to those who don't or can't.

The enthusiast supplies mirth for the onlookers. But the enthusiast is the man who eliminates and finds rest for his convolutions.

Only this, be sure to enthuse concerning more than one thing. A good golf enthusiast always enthuses over his business—the pendulum swings out as far in one direction as in the other, and one enthusiasm helps the other.

The business man who loves roses will make a success of both business and roses, and will never have nervous prostration.

Men are to be judged by their avocation rather than by their vocation.

Your vocation may be a thing that fate compels you to do, but your avocation you choose for yourself. You are what you are on account of the way you spend your leisure time. This is the real you.

Elihu Burritt was a blacksmith all day, but in the evening he was something else; Robert Collyer the same.

The question is, how do you fill in the chinks of the day? What do you do Saturday afternoons, Sundays and each evening from 7 to 9?

Macaulay, doing all his writing on stolen time, is a type not infrequent among extraordinary men. They were great on account of their hobbies.

So the moral is, get a fad, and if your boy or girl has a hobby, encourage it.

A hobby is healthful play at the worst, and undying fame at the best.

"Daughter—Oh, dear, such a time I do have with that husband of mine! I don't have one minute's peace when he's in the house. He's always calling me to do something or other.

Anxious Mother—What does he want now?

Daughter—He wants me to go upstairs to thread a needle for him, so that he can mend his clothes.

I HEARD THE SPIRITS RAPPING

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I.

THE lights were dim and gloomy, there was no brilliant glare;
A husband and his lanky wife, they were assembled there.
The lady was a spiritualist, who talked of ghosts and shades;
The husband was a bricklayer (one of the greatest trades).
He did not like the spirit thing, so when his wifey said,
"Just lift that table, Albert!" he did smite her on the head.
And as the twilight settled on that drear November day
He picked her gently off the floor and unto her did say:

CHORUS:

"Nix on this spirit business, nix on this table stunt;
I'm going to have my rights, dear, though I'm nothing but a runt.
You wonder why I struck you, when you know I love you true,
But I heard the spirits rapping, so I took a rap at you!"

II.

The lady had some common sense, there was no doubt of that;
She did not try to order her dear husband from the flat.
Instead, she went and cooked some lunch, and, moving light and swift,
She placed it on the table that her hubby tried to lift.
"Forgive me, Albert dear," she said, "I'm through with spirit tricks;
I'll keep on doing housework, if you keep on laying bricks.
The lesson that you taught me I'll remember night and day;
You won my admiration when you fearlessly did say:

CHORUS:

"Nix on this spirit business, nix on this table stunt;
I'm going to have my rights, dear, though I'm nothing but a runt.
You wonder why I struck you, when you know I love you true,
But I heard the spirits rapping, so I took a rap at you!"

There's a Reason
